Weather

Cloudy, hot but rather fine weather. The maximum temperature yesterday was 80.8 and the minimum 68.9, figures for the corresponding day last year being 87.4 and 58.6.

Peking Dust

A Daily Chronicle Of The Capital's Gossip And News

(By Our Staff Correspondent)

Peking, June 1.—Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang, "the Christian General," has added flies to the series of iniquities on which he is making war, placing the Chinese character for the Summer pests on the same list with opium and liquor for early eradication.

With the coming of Summer to Peking General Feng's camp at Nan Yuan, on the outskirts of Peking, from which he controls the destinies of the capital for the time being at least, has become infested with flies, and yesterday General Feng began to "swat the fly" by issuing instructions to all his men to catch flies, offering them so many coppers per catty for all they kill. The men have been divided into sections and each section has been allotted several thousand flies a day as their legitimate prey. With 30,000 men busily engaged swatting flies for light exercise as well as amusement the General hopes to overcome the natural multiplication tendencies of flies and emerge at the end of the season with, at least, no more flies about his camp than he has now.

Men who earn special distinction as fly-swatters will be suitably rewarded so that it is entirely within reason that before the Summer is over Peking will be visited by men from General Feng's 'roundheaded' army bearing the rank of Corporal of Fly Swatters.

That the Manchu Emperor still wields a wee fraction of his former power is seen in the Imperial Edict he has just issued making Mr. R. F. Johnston, his Imperial Tutor, concurrent Warden of the Summer Palace and the Jade Fountain. The two famous show places are, in theory at least, the property of the Boy Emperor, and when he upset all precedent a few days ago by visiting them for the first time, in company with the Empress and Mr. Johnston, it is said that he expressed a desire that they should be more carefully looked after than they have been.

The Summer Palace was once the pride and joy of the Emperors of China, especially during such stifling weather as Peking is now enjoying, but under the modern regime they have lost much of their former greatness and within the near future, unless stringent protective measures are undertaken, will probably be classified as Chinese ruins.

Mr. Johnston, as Warden of the Palace, will have the supervision of the upkeep and the making of necessary repairs. He is an excellent Chinese scholar and has taken keen interest in delving into China's ancient glories, later writing it in scholarly and interesting manner for the edification and information of a large number of people who are likewise interested but lack Mr. Johnston's intimate knowledge of the events and customs. Given half an opportunity it is to be expected that Mr. Johnston will preserve the beautiful Summer residence of the former Sons of Heaven so that they will retain at least a part of their former wonder and glory.

HOW TIMES HAVE CHANGED

Acting upon the theory that criminals are merely sufferers from some sort of inferior complex and should be segregated from respectable society while their complexes are having the kinks taken out, rather than thrown into a dungeon and maltreated or tortured, the Ministry of Justice has just issued circular instructions to all prison wardens in China emphasising certain points that must be taken into consideration in the treatment of all prisoners who are so fortunate as to come under their care.

A translation of the circular is as follows:

"1.—Prisons should be regarded as families and schools.

American Charity Ball Proves Huge Success; World Fliers Present

Airmen Given Rousing Reception By Big Crowd; Presentation Made By U. S. Consul-General

One of the most successful affairs of its kind ever held here was the American Charity Ball, which took place last night at "Marble Hall," the home of Mr. E. S. Kadoorie. The huge residence, its terrace and gardens were thronged with Americans and other nationals and the fete was given its final fillip by the presence of the American Army aviators who landed in Shanghai yesterday afternoon after their thrilling and triumphant span of the Pacific.

The entrance of the world fliers, shortly after 10 o'clock, was the occasion for a picturesque and colorful processional. Daintily dressed little girls formed a vanguard for the airmen and strewed their path with rose petals and laurels. Patronesses and the fliers were then in receiving line and the latter received introductions to the admiring crowd.

At 12:30 United States Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham called the assembly to the ball room, where on behalf of the local American organisations he presented the airmen with a handsome silver bowl and in a neatly turned speech expressed the satisfaction and pride of their fellow nationals and others as well in the great achievement. He wished them all success on the remainder of their long journey.

Lieut. Wade replied briefly, expressing his comrades' and his own appreciation of their reception. There were loud cheers and calls for a speech from Lieut. Nelson, who also spoke briefly.

Another aviation feature of the evening was the showing of the B. A. T. motion pictures of the fliers' arrival at midnight. The films were shown earlier in the evening at the Carlton Theater.

FINE PROGRAM

The Cafe Chantant was productive of a delightful and varied program. The opening number was a beautiful rendering of "Poor Butterfly" by Mrs. O'Hara. She was followed by Miss Irene Gray, dainty singer and dancer of the Del Monte. Mrs. Leo Kurt gave several fine violin solos and Signora Ronconni delighted the big audience with selections from the Barber of Seville and Pagliacci. Misses Miller and Kelly, of the Del Monte, were other delightful contributors to the entertainment and the program wound up with an en-

SUFFRAGE BILL FOR WOMEN WINS IN COMMONS

Standing Committee Votes, 38 To 11, In Favor Of Enfranchisement

(Reuter's Service)

McAdoo Claims 32 State Delegations

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Washington, June 3.—McAdoo, Democratic candidate for the presidential nomination, now claims thirty two of fifty two delegations, but admits that he does not have the support of New York, Pennsylvania or Ohio.

Frank Mondell, of Wyoming, has been named permanent chairman of the Republican National Convention. It is also announced that President Coolidge is assisting in the preparation of a party platform pledging the support of the party to a continuation of the fight for the Mellon tax plan.

COMMISSION IS GIVEN MECHANIC ON WORLD PLANE

Staff Sergeant Ogden Sworn In As Lieutenant On Arrival Here

Tired after their long journey—it is 555 miles by air from Kagoshima to Shanghai—the American round-the-world aviators found a pleasant surprise waiting them on their arrival here.

Official advices had been received at the United States Consulate yesterday that the President had signed a commission as lieutenant for Staff Sergeant H. H. Ogden, mechanic on one of the planes. As a result, Executive Consul James P. Davis awaited the aviators at the Astor House, and on their arrival there swore in Sergeant Ogden as a lieutenant in the United States Army.

Present at the ceremony, in addition to the aviators, were Capt. W. I. Eisler, Mr. Gardner Crane, Mr. Ben Pye, Mr. Ed. Rowe and Mr. W. A. Adams, who had escorted the aviators to the hotel from the Customs Jetty.

FLOWER SHOW AT TOWN HALL COLORFUL EVENT

Beautiful Display Of Blooms Seen; Paintings And Model Gardens

The annual Flower Show bloomed again in the Town Hall yesterday and it was bigger, better and more colorful than any of its predecessors.

The Town Hall presented a gorgeous spectacle after the show had been opened, for the arrangement of plants and flowers is better this year in that the hardy shrubs and large potted plants are grouped around the hall, forming a border for the cut flowers which are placed on tables in the center. The effect is of a solid background for the delicate, graceful beauty of the cut flowers and tender plants blossoming in the center. It directs the eye toward the flowers in a pleas-

SUNDAY PICTORIAL

A number of photographic reproductions of some capital color work by Mrs. Bertha Lum, an American artist of high repute who is now in Peking making Chinese sketches, are included among the features in the coming issue of THE CHINA PRESS Sunday Pictorial. Mrs. Lum is considered one of the foremost woodcut artists in the world and her woodcuts are sold by only the best places in America. Some of her drawings were recently shown at the art exhibit in Shanghai and very highly praised.

Mrs. Edwin S. Cunningham, charming wife of the American Consul-General, was among the crowd to greet the fliers. She was photographed while talking to Lieutenant Wade.

Douglas World Cruisers, Used By American Fliers, Last Word In Aircraft

Machines Are Designed For Use On Both Land And Water; Duraluminum Big Factor In Giving Lightness With Strength

The airplanes and engines used by the U.S. fliers are all-American in design, material and construction. The planes were designed by Douglas and constructed entirely at the plant of the Douglas Company, Santa Monica, Calif. Mr. Douglas ranks as one of the foremost aeronautical engineers in the United States, being known especially for his design of heavy weight carrying airplanes for commercial and bombing purposes.

The Douglas World Cruisers, as they are known, are designed as both land and water types, being readily convertible by the interchangeable feature of wheels and pontoons. Construction of the fuselage is entirely of duraluminum. Wings are of wood and fabric. The engine is of the Liberty type with latest improvements.

In the round-the world squadron at the start were four Douglas Cruisers. Scattered at various points around the globe are the equivalent, in parts, of 15 extra Liberty engines and about 200 replacements in the airplanes themselves. At points along the route where flying is entirely over water, 14 extra sets of pontoons were stored.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

Following is a general description of the World Cruisers. The fuselage is made in three detachable sections: engine Section, Mid-section. All sections are made of steel tubing. The wings are of standard box beam and built up rib construction. The upper wing is made in three panels. The lower wing is made in two panels. The wings may be folded, thus requiring small storage space. The vertical fin and horizontal stabiliser are of standard eye beam and built up rib construction. The elevator and rudder are made of steel tubing. The axles are made of alloy steel tubing, heat treated after fabrication. The struts are steel tubes, streamlined with wood. The landing gear (water type) consists of twin floats of built-up wood construction. The top covering is three-ply veneer, the bottom planking being two piles of mahogany.

The World Cruisers are biplanes. As a seaplane, empty, the Cruisers weighs 5,100 lbs. As a land plane, empty, it weighs 4,300 lbs. As a seaplane it has a disposable load (men, equipment, gasolene, fuel, oil etc.) of 2,615 lbs. As a land plane it has a disposable load of 2,615 lbs. Its gross weight as a seaplane is

PEKING PREMIER QUIT BECAUSE OF GERMAN TREATY

Agreement Probably Will Be Signed Late This Week

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 4.—The main cause of the recent resignation of Mr. Sun Pao-chi, the Premier, appears to be his pandering to the Parliamentary opposition against the proposed sino-German agreement. Mr. Sun did not attend the regular meeting of the Cabinet yesterday, and his absence afforded an opportunity for a frank discussion of the position. In the afternoon, members of the Cabinet called at the residence of Mr. Sun Pao-chi, when a full and frank talk took place, resulting in a complete reunion, after which the whole of the Cabinet interviewed the President, who approved the plans which were subsequently carried out. Mr. Sun Pao-chi withdrawing his resignation.

Later in the evening the Cabinet requested special meetings of the two Houses of Parliament tomorrow, at which the Premier will make a full report on the Sino-German negotiations, and if Parliament approves, the Sino-German agreement will probably be signed on Friday or Saturday.

TWO PLANES ARRIVE, THIRD, WITH LEADER, DELAYED IN JAPAN

American Aviators Cross China Sea Without Incident; Smith Expected To Reach City Today; All Praise Preparations Made Here

Swooping down into the Whangpoo with the perfect grace of skylarks, two of America's three round-the-world airplanes hit the water just in front of the Standard Oil Company's Pootung wharf at 3.11 o'clock yesterday afternoon and made their way through the gently swaying waters to the buoys which had been placed there for their mooring.

The two planes which arrived after a perfect flight from Kagoshima, Japan, were Nos. 3 and 4, piloted by Lieutenants Leigh Wade and Erik H. Nelson, respectively. The third plane, which has as its pilot Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, who, by reason of the accident sustained by Major Frederick Martin in Alaska, is now squadron leader, is still at Kagoshima, having been delayed there by engine trouble. Lieutenant Smith, according to cable message received from Japan late yesterday by U. Consul-General E. S. Cunningham, expects to attempt the flight to Shanghai today.

FLIGHT IS PERFECT

Aside from the delay occasioned to Lieutenant Smith's plane, not a single incident occurred to mar yesterday's flight. Smiling skies, an efficient naval patrol all the way across the China Sea, and flawless landing preparations combined to make the journey what both Lieutenants Wade and Nelson enthusiastically described as "the most perfect flight we have had since we left Santa Monica."

"Everything was perfect," Lieut. Wade declared. "The weather conditions could not have been better. Both of our machines were working splendidly, and the care taken in the selection and preparation of the landing course here made it the best which we have had since we left California. With the exception of Lieutenant Smith's inability to accompany us, nothing could have been improved upon."

TRIBUTE TO NAVY

Both aviators paid a sincere tribute to the work of the United States Navy in patrolling the course from Japan here.

"The arrangements made by the Navy were excellent," Lieut. Nelson said. "Destroyers were stationed every fifty miles all across the China Sea and if we had gotten into any trouble, it would have been only a question of a short time before they would have reached us."

With regard to Lieut. Smith, they had no information other than that they had left him at Kagoshima this morning.

SMITH HAS TROUBLE

"We planned our start to seven o'clock," Lieut. Wade said. "At that hour, we took the air. Lieut. Nelson and I had no trouble with our planes, but we saw that Lieut. Smith was having difficulty with his engine and his plane was unable to rise from the water. Lieut. Nelson and I circled about in our planes for an hour and a half, hoping that Lieut. Smith would be able to get his motor working properly and join us. At the expiration of that time, however, Lieut. Smith signalled us to proceed, and so we came on."

ANXIOUSLY AWAITED

The arrival of the two round-the-world planes off Black Point came after long hours of anxious waiting. A message from Japan on Tuesday fixed the hour of departure from Kagoshima at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning. In this expectation, arrangements were made for the official welcoming party to leave by tenders at 9.30 o'clock as it was expected that the aviators would reach Shanghai before noon. Early yesterday, however, another message, giving the time of departure at 7 o'clock, was received by the American consulate, and the departure of the tender Scot, which carried the official party, was deferred until 11 o'clock.

Captain W. I. Eisler, representative of the American Lloyd's, who had been designated to look after the arrangements for the landing course, was on the scene at Black Point in his launch Record I, before 10 o'clock, in order to make a final inspection of the course and see that everything possible had been done to assist the aviators in their arrival at Shanghai.

OFFICIALS PRESENT

The official tender, the Scot, was gayly decorated with flags and pennants and lent a gala air to the scene off Black Point on its arrival an hour and a half later. Aboard it were Consul-General and Mrs. Cunningham, Executive Consul and Mrs. James P. Davis, Vice-Consul J. B. Sawyer, Judge Milton D. Purdy, Mr. Stirling Fessenden, Chairman of the Shanghai Municipal Council, and Mr. E. S. Benbow-Rowe, secretary; Mr. S. K. Chen and Mr. N. T. Yang, chief secretaries to the Bureau of Foreign Affairs; Major General Wang, aide-de-camp to General Ho Feng-lin; Mr. Sidney Barton, British Consul-General; Mr. S. Yada, Japanese Consul-General and Mrs. Yada; Mr. N. Aall, Norweglan Consul-General, and many members of the American community. General Ho Feng-lin's band was also aboard and played a welcome to the fliers.

In addition to the Scot, the launches Sequoia, Kinru Maru, and Italia carried special parties to the scene and all morning long Standard Oil launches plied between Shanghai and the Standard Oil Wharf carrying spectators, so that when the planes actually arrived, several hundred persons were on either bank of the Whangpoo.

In the belief that the aviators would be in before noon, no provision had been made for tiffin. As the hours wore on, and the time of arrival of the aviators was finally set for 3 o'clock, hunger was general, but this was finally solved when a huge shipment of sandwiches and other refreshments arrived from the American Club.

CHORUS OF WHISTLES

Those who had waited through the long hours, however, were amply rewarded with the sight of

CHINESE THIEF ROBS FOREIGNER, STABS POLICEMAN

Constable Commended By Mixed Court For Capture

Charged with stabbing a Chinese constable, after having snatched a sum of money from a French bluejacket, a Chinese named Tsang Zu-soo appeared before Assessor Martin and Magistrate Kwan in the Mixed Court yesterday.

The case was outlined by Detective Sergeant Forkin, who stated that at about 7.40 p.m. Tuesday Marius Linquet, a sailor from the French gunboat Jules Ferry, stopped at an exchange shop at 230 Szechuen Road and asked to have $30 changed into francs. As he laid the money on the counter, the accused, who had stolen up behind him, snatched it and ran. The sailor followed him along Jinkee and Yuen Ming Yuen Roads and at Peking Road corner C. P. C. 1282 grappled with the fugitive, who immediately drew a knife and stabbed his captor on both hands. Two Special Constables, Messrs. Lazer and Fletcher, attracted by the noise, then dashed up, as did also a Sikh, and Tsang was overpowered and taken to the station. Witness said that the accused would be tried on the larceny charge in the French Mixed Court.

Tsang was found guilty on the charge of cutting and wounding the constable, who appeared in court with both hands bandaged, and the case was remanded one week for sentence.

In finding the man guilty the Court took occasion to commend the conduct of C. P. C. 1282 to the notice of the Commissioner of Police and to express its appreciation of the action of the Special Constables.

the arrival of the planes. A bright sun made it possible to gain the first glimpse of the two planes when they were still several miles away. A Chinese seaman on the Scot was the first to see the two tiny specks, quite low in the sky far beyond the Vaccuum Oil Company installation. Field glasses were brought into play, and as the first report was verified, launches and vessels all up and down the river let loose their whistles in a great chorus of welcome.

From the time the planes were first sighted, it was but a matter of minutes before they came into full view and the steady whirr of their motors was heard. Lieut Wade's plane was in the lead, flying quite low above the water. Slightly in back, and higher, came Lieut. Nelson's plane. The wind was from down-river. Descending rapidly, the two planes came up the river as far as the Standard Oil Installation and then made a sweeping curve and hit the water with their noses pointed down-river into the wind.

With the exception of the Blue Funnel Steamer Laomedon, the river was quite clear of shipping at the time, a great fleet of Chinese junks having been held up below the landing course. As the first plane neared the water, the Laomedon, to spectators, appeared to be directly in its course, and for a brief second, shocked suspense hovered over the crowd in the fear that there might be a collision. Fortunately, however, Lieut. Wade was able to maneuver his plane alongside of the Laomedon and come to a perfect stop directly in front of the buoy assigned to him. In an instant, his mechanic, was down on the struts and making fast the plane to the buoy.

In the meantime, Lieut. Nelson had also descended to the water and it was only a few minutes before his plane, too, was tied up safely.

RECEPTION ON TENDER

Captain Eisler and the United States Navy guard approached the two planes in sampans and took off the pilots. The mechanics, however, stayed on board the planes, adjusting the engines and doing other necessary work. Lieutenants Wade and Nelson were brought directly to the Scot, where they were officially welcomed to Shanghai by Consul-General Cunningham. An informal reception was held on board, and while motion picture photographers ground out films of the smiling airmen, members of the welcoming party were presented to them.

Within a half-hour, the pilots were again on their planes, going over them and seeing that everything was ship-shape. They kept at it until 6 o'clock, when together with their mechanics, Lieuts. Ogden and Harding, they were brought to the Customs jetty by Captain Eisler and taken to their rooms at the Astor House.

Many persons who had expected that the aviators would come to the Customs Jetty immediately upon their arrival were doomed to disappointment. Scores had gathered at the Customs Jetty, awaiting the arrival of the Scot, on which they expected the aviators to be passengers. In addition, the American Troop, S.V.C., was drawn up in parade formation. Quite a few of those present on the jetty waited on, and welcomed the aviators when they did arrive two hours later.

The aviators were the guests of Consul-General and Mrs. Cunningham at dinner at the consulate last night. Later in the evening, they attended the American Charity Ball as guests of honor. Other entertainment plans are being held in abeyance pending the arrival of Lieut. Smith's plane.

A late message received by the consulate from the United States Consul at Kagoshima confirmed earlier advices that Lieut. Smith would hop off on the flight to Shanghai this morning. The definite time of his arrival today is not known yet, but, as yesterday, a pennant will be flown from the consulate flag-pole three hours in advance of his arrival. Consul-General Cunningham or Consul Davis will go down the river to greet him on behalf of the American community.

Either over-strictness or over-leniency tend to spoil the prisoners.

2.—Since the relation between the wardens and the prisoner corresponds to that between teacher and pupil, instructive and educational motives of the prisons must not be over-looked.

3.—Imprisonment is a misfortune in any case. It has been found that many prisoners would regret what they have done. Remorse has, on more than one occasion, turned a bad man good. If proper attention is given by the wardens, conscience and educative influence will do the rest to make them good citizens. The prison is a human repair shop."

Even in China, where, since the overthrow of the Manchus and the installation of the present Tuchun dynasty theoretical miracles are to be expected, such a memorandum must be considered revolutionary. China provides a background for a study of inhuman conditions in prisons and the fine art of torture that cannot be rivalled by any other country in the world, in this or past ages. Chinese dungeons provide material for some of the most vivid descriptions of that sort of thing ever written. To be incarcerated in a dungeon—at least up until a few years ago—was to meet a living death, with death the happiest alternative.

In the gentle art of torturing their prisoners the Chinese have stood unrivalled. Human fiendishness in its most grotesque and gruesome forms flowered here unrivalled. A man might be hung or shot or electrocuted in other countries but such assistance to the undertaker was not for China. Punishments by death were classified even as punishments for other crimes are classified into differing lengths of prison terms. A man might be shot—and within recent years that has become the general manner of ridding the country of the criminal element—but a much nicer and more attractive job could be done by decapitation with a ceremonial in connection for the benefit of the onlooker. And then there were the 'coffin-prisons' used in Mongolia until a few years ago, the torture of a thousand cuts, removal of ears, noses, or limbs, and a thousand and one other devices for making life just as miserable as possible for the doomed man.

Now, however, all this is to be changed, and criminals treated like naughty boys who must be reformed. The principles advanced by Warden Mott of Sing Sing have been translated into Chinese. The theories advanced by the prison reformers in the United States and Great Britain are are to be given a trial instead of the ancient iniquities.

And the strangest thing about it is that this most human document has been issued just at the time when there is considerable discussion of the rendition of the Shanghai Mixed Court, the coming of a judicial commission to China to study court conditions, and another flurry over the abolition of extraterritoriality!

World Cruisers Are 'Last Word'

7,715 lbs. As a land plane it has a gross weight of 6,915 lbs. Its speed as a land plane therefore, will be faster than as a seaplane. It has a gasoline capacity of 450 gallons, a wing loading of 10.9 lbs. per square foot, as a seaplane, and of 9.7 per sq ft. as a land plane. It has a load as a seaplane of 18.3 lbs. for each horse power, and as a land plane of 16.3 lbs. per h. p.

The Liberty engine is of the used 400 h. p. The wing span, both upper and lower, is 50 feet. The height over all is 13 ft. 7 inches. The length over all is 35 ft. 6 inches. As a seaplane it has a normal altitude of 7,000 ft., a normal maximum speed of 100 miles an hour and a landing speed of 35 miles an hour. As a land plane it can climb to 10,000 ft. travel 103 miles an hour, and land at 53 miles an hour.

From the foregoing it will be seen that, as a land plane, with a greater height, it is able to negotiate successfully high mountain ranges and as a seaplane is able to land at a slower rate or speed in waters which may either be rough, or strewn with ice.

PONTOONS AND WHEELS

Upon arriving at Seattle, Wash. the Douglas World Cruisers were fitted with pontoons at the plant of the Boeing Airplane Company. Water landings were made along the coast of British Columbia, Alaska and through the Aleutian Islands, down into Japan. Landing gears will be used across Asia Minor and Europe as far as Hull, England, where pontoons will again be placed on the airplanes and used until the flight reaches Montreal, or Keyport, N. J., at one of which points the pontoons will again be replaced by landing gears for the completion of the flight. The last replacement of pontoons will be made by the Aeromarine Plane and Motor Company at Keyport, N. J.

ADVANCE PREPARATIONS

The most careful preparations for the flight around the world have been made by the Army Air Service. It has been assisted by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America. Through the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce several score American business corporations with representatives abroad have cordially lent their assistance by providing letters of credit or personal letters of introduction which will facilitate the advance officers or the actual pilots themselves in case of emergency. E. P. Small, President of the American Express Company extended official cooperation through all American Express offices along the route.

Supplies have been shipped from the United States to various points on the route. Gasoline, oil and smaller articles of supply have been placed at practically all stops. The longest hop was from Attu Island to Shimushu Island, in the northern part of the Kurile Islands Group. Other long hops will be necessary over the Atlantic Ocean between the Faroe Islands and Iceland, between Iceland and Greenland, and between Greenland and northern Canada, the longest of these being about 700 miles.

Mosjuhin Tonight

An outstanding musical event takes place at 9.15 tonight, when M. Mosjuhin, the noted Russian basso-cantante, assisted by Madame Cleo Carini, will give a farewell recital at 182 Bubbling Well Road, the residence of Mrs. A. G. Stephen. The affair promises to be a memorable one.

A few facts concerning M. Mosjuhin may not be out of place here. M. Alexandre Mosjuhin was born in Russia in a village of the Government of Saratoff. After finishing his education in the village school, he was sent to the town of Penza, where he completed his education in the ecclesiastical seminary at the age of 20. He showed musical capacities from early childhood, when he started to play the violin, which his father had won at a lottery for a ticket of 25 kopecks. He continued taking lessons in the seminary from Mr. Ladiguin, at the conclusion of which he went to Moscow, where he entered the Philharmonic School. There he studied for three years on the violin under Professor Press. At one of the examinational concerts, M. Mosjuhin had to sing in a choir, and it was there that everyone noticed the wonderful timbre of his voice, and he was persuaded to start training it.

M. Mosjuhin began his singing studies with Professor Wishnevetzky, with whom he learnt no fewer than five operas in 18 months' time. He then passed an examination and entered the opera class of Professor Medvedlev at the Philharmonic School at Moscow. During an examination his wonderful voice made a deep impression on all the professors and everyone wanted him as his pupil. After 1905, he joined the Opera Theater of Solodovnikov, in Moscow. In 1922, M. Mosjuhin received an invitation to the Musical Drama in Petrograd. He remained there three years, singing the leading parts and always having wonderful success.

In 1914—the year of the Great War—he was asked to go and sign a contract with the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, but the War interfered with his plans and he had perforce to forgo his contract. M. Mosjuhin, at the present time, enjoys fame in Russia and throughout Europe. He is well known not only as an opera singer but as a real leader of chamber music, of which he is a masterly interpreter. M. Mosjuhin understands and reproduces as none other can the music of Mussorgsky, which is known to be most difficult. Wherever he has appeared, he has met with extraordinary success and been tendered enthusiastic ovations. His operatic repertoire consists of no fewer than nearly 90 operas. In addition to the program to be given tonight, M. Mosjuhin has prepared 28 songs in the way of recalls and a printed synopsis of each in English has been prepared for the benedt of non-Russians.

Madame Cleo Carini, who accompanies M. Mosjuhin, was born in the Crimea. She began her musical studies at the tender age of five. When 13 years old, she went to Germany, Switzerland and Italy and finished her musical education in Greece with Professor Montesanto. She started giving concerts, met with great success and very soon became a favorite as a talented pianist and singer (lyrical soprano). Madame Carini always appears in leading parts in operas with M. Mosjuhin, such as Marguerite in "Faust," Xenia in "Boris Godunoff," Violetta in "Traviata" and Rosina in "The Barber of Seville." Madame Carini's name is also well known in the cinema world.

Following is the program for tonight's concert:

"Tsar Saul" and "Forgotten"	Moussorghsky
"The Night Review"	Glinka
"The Kiss"	Dargomisky
"The Old Corporal"	Dargomisky
Lullaby	Monssorghsky

"I begrudge No one"	R. Schumann
"The Two Grenadiers"	R. Schumann
"Dreams throughout the Night"	R. Schumann
"Musings"	F. Schumann
"Der Zeiermann"	F. Schumann

ARMED ROBBERS HOLD UP SHOPS IN LOUZA DISTRICT

Two armed robberies, both believed to have been committed by the same gang, occurred in Louza district Tuesday evening. The first of these took place in a cloth shop at 266 Markham Road, near Fokien Road, shortly before 8 o'clock. Three men entered the place and pretended that they wished to buy some cloth. After about ten minutes of discussion they all produced pistols, held up the inmates and escaped with $200 in notes and silver and about $20 in small money. No shots were fired and no report was made to the police until half an hour later.

The second robbery occurred at about 8.45 p.m. in a silk shop at 678 Fokien Road. Here too three men entered and pretended that they wished to make purchases. The bargaining went on for some little time and then the robbers drew their weapons and looted the cash box. They secured $280 in notes and silver, about $50 in small money and took as well two rolls of silk. One of the robbers fired a shot into the floor as they were leaving.

ing way and provides a better view of all exhibits.

As usual the small rooms off the main hall were used for separate exhibitions. On the left, the ferns and vegetables were displayed; on the right were the exhibits of the National Sweet Pea Society, Members' Special Exhibits and the innovation of the year, the display of photographs, water colors and oil paintings of garden views. This proved an interesting feature of the show, for the paintings and photographs are of local gardens, done by the exhibitors.

PICTURE PRIZES

Mrs. R. J. Roberts won first prize for her water colors, Mrs. Hanley was second, Mrs. Pardoe was first for her oil painting and Mrs. Craddock won first for her photographs.

The sweet peas appeared in more delectable shades than ever, there being several varieties of a common pink that were exquisite. The purple and maron varieties were also beautiful.

Unusual effects were obtained in the hanging baskets of nasturtiums and the geraniums seemed more brilliant in color and gigantic in size than heretofore.

MINIATURE GARDENS

In the small room with the photographs and paintings the three prize-winning miniature gardens were shown. These are delightful examples of artistic and painstaking effort. These tiny replicas of big gardens are laid out with infinite care so that the effect is a perfect reproduction of Shanghai's best-known and loveliest gardens. Every detail in them is complete; in the 1st prize winner, Mrs. Cornfoot's, which was executed with artificial greenery, there were stone walks laid out, a sunken garden down from the small garden around the miniature house; there was a tiny motorcar waiting outside the house and further on, to the left of the thimblefull of water that was the pond, there was a bird house. In Mrs. C. H. Ryde's garden, which won second prize, there was a pond with a baby goldfish doing his best to swim in cramped quarters; there was also a tennis court laid out. This garden was particularly interesting for all the greenery and the hedge borders, etc., was real, and it was beautifully fresh.

TABLES ATTRACTIVE

The decorated dinner tables were attractive, the spring flowers being represented on the various tables. One display of red leaves and red and yellow flowers was especially good for an autumn table.

There was a notable absence of roses, due, no doubt, to the earlier advent of a separate rose show this year. Those that were represented were chiefly of the hardy, rambler variety.

Says Millerand Will Not Resign

(Reuter's Service)

Paris June 4.—The Matin says that President Millerand does not dream of resigning. If the politicians whom the country has called to office decline it, President Millerand will call someone else to form the Ministry, and if this Ministry is overthrown it will only be after an historic debate on the question of the President's right to appoint a Cabinet, after which President Millerand will take the decisions of the same.

Motion For Further Particulars Refused In China Press Suit

Point Is Reserved For Consideration At Trial

The case in which Mr. Herbert Webb, former editor of THE CHINA PRESS is suing the proprietors of that newspaper to recover damages for alleged wrongful dismissal, was mentioned late yesterday afternoon in the United States Court for China, before Judge Milton D. Purdy, when Mr. C. S. Franklin asked for an order that the defendants should make more explicit in certain details the bill of particulars which they had supplied as a result of a previous order of the Court.

Counsel contended that the defendants had set up an affirmative defense to the action brought by the plaintiff, and that his client should be given more specific information concerning the allegations made against him in order that he should not be prejudiced at the trial of the action. Counsel remarked that the charges made against the plaintiff were very vague and more definite information was necessary. For example it was alleged that plaintiff was frequently absent from office during office hours. Plaintiff should be informed as to what dates he was thus absent in order that he might be able to show where he was on those days and the work he was engaged on. This applied also, counsel said to the allegation that on various occasions plaintiff assigned work to members of the staff which was detrimental to the interests of the paper.

Mr. H. D. Rodger, who was with Mr. Franklin, stated that the defendant's bill of particulars had been so vaguely drawn that it would be able to import anything they wanted into the trial without adequate notice being given the plaintiff.

Judge Purdy stated that if it were shown during the trial that the plaintiff was taken by surprise and required time to meet the evidence adduced against him, he would give him sufficient time to do so, while if the defendant endeavored to prove anything not covered by the bill of particulars it would be excluded. If the defendant had prepared a bill of particulars which was not a bill of particulars the Court would protect the plaintiff from any evil result.

The point was consequently reserved for consideration at the trial which is to commence tomorrow.

U. S. World Plane Pilots Veterans Of Air Service

Both Lieutenant Leigh Wade and Lieutenant Erik H. Nelson, pilots of the two American round-the-world airplanes which arrived in Shanghai yesterday, are veteran members of the United States Army Air Service and have many notable flying achievements to their credit.

Lieutenant Wade was born at Cassopolis, Michigan. He received his flying training with the Royal Air Force at Toronto, Canada. Upon qualifying as a pilot, he immediately became a flying instructor with the Royal Air Force and later in the United States Army Air Service. He served in the A. E. F. in France from August, 1918, until July, 1919, during which time he acted as test pilot, instructor, and then as commanding officer of the 120th Aero Squadron at one of the large American training centers in France. After the Armistice he was on duty in the Technical Information Section of the Air Service in Paris. Upon his return to the United States he was assigned to duty at McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio, where he carried out the work of test pilot, flying all types of American air-plane equipment.

Lieutenant Wade is considered one of the best pilots in the American Air Service. He has done considerable photographic work and participated in many photographic expeditions of note, chief among which being the mission carried out in the White Mountains of New Hampshire and Vermont in 1921.

Lieutenant Erik H. Nelson, Air Service, was born at Stockholm, Sweden. He was by profession an aeronautical motor expert, and prior to his entry into the military service had seven years' experience in the United States and abroad on internal combustion engines. He served with the Curtiss Aeroplane Company as aeronautical motor expert.

Lieutenant Nelson has many notable flying achievements to his credit and has perhaps a greater amount of cross-country experience, flying over different types of terrain, than any other officer in the Army Air Service. Among the notable flights in which he participated and was in a great measure responsible for the success of, were:

Gulf to Pacific Flight in 1919.

Alaskan Flying Expedition from New York to Nome, Alaska, in 1920, on which flight he acted in the capacity of engineer officer.

San Antonio to Porto Rico Flight in 1923, in which he again acted in the capacity of engineer officer.

In 1922 he won the "Detroit News" Aerial Mail Trophy Race in a Martin Bomber, averaging 110 miles per hour.

Lieutenant Nelson has also approximately 1,600 flying hours, of which 800 have been cross-country.

Middle school boys and other youngsters at Shizuoka are infected with Socialism, according to the Nichi Nichi. They have been planning to organise a socialistic union of schoolboys in the neighborhood. The Shizuoka police, who have been informed of the plan, are watching their doings with vigilant eyes! What is the world coming to, comments the Japan Chronicle? We had always regarded the very democratic school system—for practically all classes attend the common schools—as one of the most admirable things in Japan. Apparently the boys have acquired the spirit of the institution too thoroughly.

Words From The Lips Of Wise Men

The poetry of earth is never dead.

Desire not to live long, but to live well;
How long we live not years, but actions tell.—Watkyns.

A friend should bear his friend's infirmities.

You cannot avoid necessities—you can conquer them.

Nothing can be born of nothing—nothing can be resolved into nothing.

None is happy but the man who is wise and good.

Conduct is three-fourths of our life and its largest concern.

A blow with a word strikes deeper than a blow with a sword.

Be sparing of advice by words, but teach your lesson by example.

Music is never stationary; successive forms and styles are only like so many resting places—like tents pitched and taken down again on the road to the ideal.

That man is dead who for the body lives.

Contempt is the sharpest reproof.

There are no riches above a sound body and there is no joy above the joy of the heart.

All worldly happiness consists in opinion.

Exhaustive observation is an element of great achievement.

Every man is occasionally what he ought to be perpetually.

Joys are not the property of the rich alone.

Chinese Burglar Killed In Effort To Rob H'kong Man

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, June 4.—An armed Chinese burglar savagely attacked Mr. H. W. Page, of the Dairy Farm Company, in the house of the latter, which was entered by Chinese in the small hours of this morning. Mr. Page grappled with his assailant, and there was a life and death struggle, in the course of which Mr. Page's terrior dog bit off the burglar's toe. Attracted by Mr. Page's call for assistance a Portuguese neighbor rushed into the house with two policemen, who found Mr. Page exhausted by loss of blood and an abdominal wound. The burglar, in attempting to escape, fell off the verandah and was killed instantaneously.

A sumptuous buffet supper was served at 12 o'clock and dancing went gaily on in the huge ball room to a fine program of music by the Parisien Orchestra, lent by the management for the occasion.

Though the attendance was so large, the big residence and its spacious grounds, which were lit by searchlights, gave ample accomodation and everything went smoothly throughout, great credit being due those in charge. The traffic arrangements were perfect.

MANY BEAUTIFUL GOWNS

A riot of beautiful gowns lent added color to the affair. Of the hostesses, Mrs. E. S. Cunningham looked charming in a striking, tight-fitting black dress, trimmed with red poinsettas, and with an enormous red lacquered comb in her hair.

Mrs. Gardner Crane wore a gown of gray georgette and silver lace with an amethyst cabachon for trimming, and black Spanish lace comb.:

Mrs. Ed. Himrod wore jade green crepe de chine dress with brocaded silver skirt.

Mrs. F. J. Schuhl appeared in a striking gown of cloth of gold and almond green crepe de chine, with tightly fitting bodice. It had the new scarf trimming and a full overskirt georgette banding and black maribou.

Dr. Anne Walter Fearn wore cloth of silver over mauve.

Mrs. E. M. Gull wore a beautiful Alice Prosser gown of gold lace, shoulder draped, of several shades of mauve and blue.

Mrs. Atkinson wore black crepe de chine with tan lace overdrape.

Mrs. Arthur Basset appeared in white and silver lace.

Mrs. S. Yada wore a soft black crepe de chine gown.

Mrs. M. D. Purdy wore black chiffon with trimming of steel bead embroidery.

Mrs. J. H. Dollar wore a Lavin model of mauve, trimmed with skunk fur and oriental embroidery in various colors.

Mrs. Merriman wore a plain but rich dress of white satin.

Neither Mme. Wilden nor Mme. di Rossi was able to be present for the ball.

Idol Processions Halt Business In Kiangsu Town

(China Press Correspondence)

Changshu, Ku., June 2.—This is the last of four days of idol processions that have paraded the entire city. Business has been suspended—practically so—and the schools that did not close have been poorly attended. Old and young have stood for hours waiting for the parade.

These parades are Taoist in origin and are paid for by subscriptions taken up by Yamen runners. Elaborately decorated horses ridden by children from three to 10 years of age are features of the parades. Some of the idols carried are very small and insignificant looking, being not more than eight or ten inches high. Others are ten or fifteen feet high.

The subscriptions for this parade are said to have amounted to $30,000.

Koo Kung-kung, a restaurant keeper by trade, was found dead this morning at 6 o'clock. He had a business of his own until China New Year when he was forced to close his doors. His father is a wealthy land owner and restaurant keeper at Bangkajau, on the Yangtsze about 10 miles from here. The father became provoked at his son for prodigal living and after setting him up in business and paying his debts a few times refused to give further aid. Kung-kung had asked him for $30 last week but the most he could beg out of the old man was $10. This he scornfully refused. He spent last night with some friends gambling and lost some ten dollars. After leaving them he seems to have made his way to the top of the mountain in the city back of a temple where he ended his life by hanging himself from a small willow tree. Hundreds of people made their way to the top of the mountain to see the body, which was not removed for some hours.

Sailor Fined $25 For Assaulting Chinese

In the United States Court for China yesterday afternoon before Judge Milton D. Purdy, H. A. Chamberlain, a coxswain on board the U. S. S. Pigeon was charged on three counts with assaulting a ricsha coolie, and two Chinese constables on Saturday last. Evidence was given to effect that defendant hired a ricsha and when finished refused to pay the coolie, who when he demanded payment was assaulted. Two Chinese constables engaged in arresting the accused were also struck. Defendant at the time was under the influence of liquor. Giving evidence on his own behalf defendant stated that he only had had two drinks that night and did not remember anything at all about the matter. He was fined $25.

'Boy' Charlton, Australian Swimming Marvel, Has Style All His Own, Says Coach

The following description of the style of swimming used by "Boy" Charlton, the young Australian swimming wonder, is taken from a communication from Tom Adriane, famous Antipodean coach, to Frank Beaurepaire who swam recently in Honolulu, establishing what it is hoped will be taken as world's records in the distance swims:

"Nairda"
MANLY,

Dear Frank,

I was delighted to get your letter the other day and have since conveyed your congratulations to "Boy" and his father.

Now that Boy has become famous several have claimed to have perfected his style, but he is undoubtedly a born natural swimmer.

He first showed promise in a ½ mile race which I promoted among the Juniors three years ago. "Boy" won and covered the distance in 13:20 which you know is remarkable time for a boy of 12 years. I thought then he had an ideal distance stroke, although at that time his arm action was choppy and clumsy, but what impressed me most was the amazing stamina he possessed at such an early age. I know you were impressed by his performance over the ¼ last season, but no one expected him to develop into a world beater at fifteen. His stroke has improved as he has grown, especially his arm action. He now makes good use of his long reach. Many experts have analysed his stroke. The majority say he does the American Tandge Crawl, some say the four beat, but I really fail to see anything American in his methods. It's an Australian stroke developed by himself. He hasn't copied anyone. The boy swam the same style before Ross arrived here.

NO SLOW UP

The most noticeable feature of his stroke is the absence of any retarding movements. He breathes on the left side, right arm entering the water. His scissor with both top and bottom legs straight is executed with the entrance of the right arm (same timing as orthodox trudge) at the entrance of left arm he does one beat vertically with left leg. This is the only crawl action in his stroke. His scissor narrows and widens as he increases and decreases his speed when racing 220 about 12" and 880 about 18". His reach is fairly long and comfortable and I might add he swings the left arm like a trudge swimmer. Another feature of his stroke is that he retains his pace with the underneath arm when the top one is entering the water; also the absence of drive or impetus gained from the scissor but an even gliding movement right through the stroke. He raises his head and looks ahead and glances to his blind side without diminishing his speed—an indication of perfect balance. Also his breathing and timing appear to me to be perfect.

NOT A CRAWL

They can call it trudgeon crawl if they like but there's certainly a lot more trudge than crawl in his action. The boy undoubtedly has an ideal distance stroke. So far his best effort for 220 is 2:30 and 100, 1:2. It's his wonderful staying ability that enables him to put up such remarkable time for ¼ and ½ mile. In the trial I gave him at Ruscutters Bay he swam the first ¼ in 5:25, second in 5:35 3-5 Only 10 secs. slower without a dive. In his second swim he was about 5 secs. slower in the second ¼.

"Boy" will not be competing in the Australian Championships. His father thinks it advisable that he should have a rest from competitive swimming until he matures more. He went to Hawkesbury Agricultural College last Monday. The college is fairly close to the river and he is going to have a swim at every opportunity.

I notice you won the 880 Victorian Champ. in 12:42 rough water and no turns last Saturday, Frank. You must be picking up your form. Have you decided to go to Adelaide? 220 is the only distance that Harris will give you a race. His 2:26½ in the Domain is a great swim. This seems to be his pet distance.

I expect you will meet Billy Herald in Melbourne en route for Perth—He leaves Sydney on Friday. He is swimming as well as ever.

With best wishes for a successful season.

Your very truly,
(Signed) Tom Adriane.

BOXING TONIGHT

Tonight's boxing card at the Carlton will bring together Kid Volaire and Bobby Favacho in the main event. Volaire is the boy who knocked Battling Kyko for a loop at the Stadium some time ago, and is a fighter of rare class. He does not scale as much as Favacho, but is tall and rangy and packs a terrific punch. Both these boys are sluggers and if either connects the other will no doubt hear the birdies. The management says a good preliminary card has been arranged, and that the show will be well worth watching.

BASEBALL TODAY!

Manager Gallop announced yesterday that the Shanghai and M. B. K. baseball teams would clash again today at the Race Track, starting at five o'clock. This is the same Japanese team that came within an eyelash of winning Tuesday's game, and it contains some first class baseball talent. This will be the first game under Jerry Thatch's captaincy; which should be the occasion for a large flock of fans to turn out and give him the glad hand.

Words From The Lips Of Wise Men

The poetry of earth is never dead.

Desire not to live long, but to live well;
How long we live not years, but actions tell.—Watkyns.

A friend should bear his friend's infirmities.

You cannot avoid necessities—you can conquer them.

Nothing can be born of nothing—nothing can be resolved into nothing.

None is happy but the man who is wise and good.

Conduct is three-fourths of our life and its largest concern.

A blow with a word strikes deeper than a blow with a sword.

Be sparing of advice by words, but teach your lesson by example.

Music is never stationary; successive forms and styles are only like so many resting places—like tents pitched and taken down again on the road to the ideal.

That man is dead who for the body lives.

Contempt is the sharpest reproof.

There are no riches above a sound body and there is no joy above the joy of the heart.

All worldly happiness consists in opinion.

Exhaustive observation is an element of great achievement.

Every man is occasionally what he ought to be perpetually.

Joys are not the property of the rich alone.

Chinese Burglar Killed In Effort To Rob H'kong Man

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, June 4.—An armed Chinese burglar savagely attacked Mr. H. W. Page, of the Dairy Farm Company, in the house of the latter, which was entered by Chinese in the small hours of this morning. Mr. Page grappled with his assailant, and there was a life and death struggle, in the course of which Mr. Page's terrior dog bit off the burglar's toe. Attracted by Mr. Page's call for assistance a Portuguese neighbor rushed into the house with two policemen, who found Mr. Page exhausted by loss of blood and an abdominal wound. The burglar, in attempting to escape, fell off the verandah and was killed instantaneously.

MANY BEAUTIFUL GOWNS

A riot of beautiful gowns lent added color to the affair. Of the hostesses, Mrs. E. S. Cunningham looked charming in a striking, tight-fitting black dress, trimmed with red poinsettas, and with an enormous red lacquered comb in her hair.

Mrs. Gardner Crane wore a gown of gray georgette and silver lace with an amethyst cabachon for trimming, and black Spanish lace comb.:

Mrs. Ed. Himrod wore jade green crepe de chine dress with brocaded silver skirt.

Mrs. F. J. Schuhl appeared in a striking gown of cloth of gold and almond green crepe de chine, with tightly fitting bodice. It had the new scarf trimming and a full overskirt georgette banding and black maribou.

Dr. Anne Walter Fearn wore cloth of silver over mauve.

Mrs. E. M. Gull wore a beautiful Alice Prosser gown of gold lace, shoulder draped, of several shades of mauve and blue.

Mrs. Atkinson wore black crepe de chine with tan lace overdrape.

Mrs. Arthur Basset appeared in white and silver lace.

Mrs. S. Yada wore a soft black crepe de chine gown.

Mrs. M. D. Purdy wore black chiffon with trimming of steel bead embroidery.

Mrs. J. H. Dollar wore a Lavin model of mauve, trimmed with skunk fur and oriental embroidery in various colors.

Mrs. Merriman wore a plain but rich dress of white satin.

Neither Mme. Wilden nor Mme. di Rossi was able to be present for the ball.

Idol Processions Halt Business In Kiangsu Town

(China Press Correspondence)

Changshu, Ku., June 2.—This is the last of four days of idol processions that have paraded the entire city. Business has been suspended—practically so—and the schools that did not close have been poorly attended. Old and young have stood for hours waiting for the parade.

These parades are Taoist in origin and are paid for by subscriptions taken up by Yamen runners. Elaborately decorated horses ridden by children from three to 10 years of age are features of the parades. Some of the idols carried are very small and insignificant looking, being not more than eight or ten inches high. Others are ten or fifteen feet high.

The subscriptions for this parade are said to have amounted to $30,000.

Koo Kung-kung, a restaurant keeper by trade, was found dead this morning at 6 o'clock. He had a business of his own until China New Year when he was forced to close his doors. His father is a wealthy land owner and restaurant keeper at Bangkajau, on the Yangtsze about 10 miles from here. The father became provoked at his son for prodigal living and after setting him up in business and paying his debts a few times refused to give further aid. Kung-kung had asked him for $30 last week but the most he could beg out of the old man was $10. This he scornfully refused. He spent last night with some friends gambling and lost some ten dollars. After leaving them he seems to have made his way to the top of the mountain in the city back of a temple where he ended his life by hanging himself from a small willow tree. Hundreds of people made their way to the top of the mountain to see the body, which was not removed for some hours.

Sailor Fined $25 For Assaulting Chinese

In the United States Court for China yesterday afternoon before Judge Milton D. Purdy, H. A. Chamberlain, a coxswain on board the U. S. S. Pigeon was charged on three counts with assaulting a ricsha coolie, and two Chinese constables on Saturday last. Evidence was given to effect that defendant hired a ricsha and when finished refused to pay the coolie, who when he demanded payment was assaulted. Two Chinese constables engaged in arresting the accused were also struck. Defendant at the time was under the influence of liquor. Giving evidence on his own behalf defendant stated that he only had had two drinks that night and did not remember anything at all about the matter. He was fined $25.

'Boy' Charlton, Australian Swimming Marvel, Has Style All His Own, Says Coach

The following description of the style of swimming used by "Boy" Charlton, the young Australian swimming wonder, is taken from a communication from Tom Adriane, famous Antipodean coach, to Frank Beaurepaire who swam recently in Honolulu, establishing what it is hoped will be taken as world's records in the distance swims:

"Nairda"
MANLY.

Dear Frank,

I was delighted to get your letter the other day and have since conveyed your congratulations to "Boy" and his father.

Now that Boy has become famous several have claimed to have perfected his style, but he is undoubtedly a born natural swimmer.

He first showed promise in a ½ mile race which I promoted among the Juniors three years ago. "Boy" won and covered the distance in 13:20 which you know is remarkable time for a boy of 12 years. I thought then he had an ideal distance stroke, although at that time his arm action was choppy and clumsy, but what impressed me most was the amazing stamina he possessed at such an early age. I know you were impressed by his performance over the ¼ last season, but no one expected him to develop into a world beater at fifteen. His stroke has improved as he has grown, especially his arm action. He now makes good use of his long reach. Many experts have analysed his stroke. The majority say he does the American Tandge Crawl, some say the four beat, but I really fail to see anything American in his methods. It's an Australian stroke developed by himself. He hasn't copied anyone. The boy swam the same style before Ross arrived here.

NO SLOW UP

The most noticeable feature of his stroke is the absence of any retarding movements. He breathes on the left side, right arm entering the water. His scissor with both top and bottom legs straight is executed with the entrance of the right arm (same timing as orthodox trudge) at the entrance of left arm he does one beat vertically with left leg. This is the only crawl action in his stroke. His scissor narrows and widens as he increases and decreases his speed when racing 220 about 12" and 880 about 18". His reach is fairly long and comfortable and I might add he swings the left arm like a trudge swimmer. Another feature of his stroke is that he retains his pace with the underneath arm when the top one is entering the water; also the absence of drive or impetus gained from the scissor but an even gliding movement right through the stroke. He raises his head and looks ahead and glances to his blind side without diminishing his speed—an indication of perfect balance. Also his breathing and timing appear to me to be perfect.

NOT A CRAWL

They can call it trudgeon crawl if they like but there's certainly a lot more trudge than crawl in his action. The boy undoubtedly has an ideal distance stroke. So far his best effort for 220 is 2:30 and 100, 1:2. It's his wonderful staying ability that enables him to put up such remarkable time for ¼ and ½ mile. In the trial I gave him at Ruscutters Bay he swam the first ¼ in 5:25, second in 5:35 3-5. Only 10 secs. slower without a dive. In his second swim he was about 5 secs. slower in the second ¼.

"Boy" will not be competing in the Australian Championships. His father thinks it advisable that he should have a rest from competitive swimming until he matures more. He went to Hawkesbury Agricultural College last Monday. The college is fairly close to the river and he is going to have a swim at every opportunity.

I notice you won the 880 Victorian Champ. in 12:42 rough water and no turns last Saturday, Frank. You must be picking up your form. Have you decided to go to Adelaide? 220 is the only distance that Harris will give you a race. His 2:26½ in the Domain is a great swim. This seems to be his pet distance.

I expect you will meet Billy Herald in Melbourne en route for Perth—He leaves Sydney on Friday. He is swimming as well as ever.

With best wishes for a successful season.

Your very truly,
(Signed) Tom Adriane.

BOXING TONIGHT

Tonight's boxing card at the Carlton will bring together Kid Volaire and Bobby Favacho in the main event. Volaire is the boy who knocked Battling Kyko for a loop at the Stadium some time ago, and is a fighter of rare class. He does not scale as much as Favacho, but is tall and rangy and packs a terrific punch. Both these boys are sluggers and if either connects the other will no doubt hear the birdies. The management says a good preliminary card has been arranged, and that the show will be well worth watching.

BASEBALL TODAY!

Manager Gallop announced yesterday that the Shanghai and M. B. K. baseball teams would clash again today at the Race Track, starting at five o'clock. This is the same Japanese team that came within an eyelash of winning Tuesday's game, and it contains some first class baseball talent. This will be the first game under Jerry Thatch's captaincy; which should be the occasion for a large flock of fans to turn out and give him the glad hand.

SUMMER SCHOOL HERE WILL OFFER PHYSICAL COURSE

Public Health Teaching Also Feature Of East China Union Plan

As a forerunner of the plan of the National Committee of the Y. M. C. A. to start a school of physical education and public health in Shanghai, a number of course will be offered in these subjects in the East China Union Summer School, which is to be held from July 5 to August 1 at St. John's University. Any one of college rank of its equivalent may enrol.

The men and women who will conduct classes in and lecture on physical education and public health are drawn from both the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A., Ginling College of Nanking, and the College and Medical School of St. John's University.

Dr. J. H. Gray, physical director of the National Committee of the Y. M. C. A., will give two elementary courses in physical education, one on fundamentals of leadership in floor work for higher primary and lower middle school teachers or for those desiring to study for physical education work, and the other on anatomy and physiology, covering information necessary for teaching such courses in primary and middle schools in China.

Teachers may also gain valuable advice in the task of training students in the formation of health habits by taking Dr. S. M. Woo's course in educational hygiene or in the cause and prevention of disease. Demonstrations and practical work will be given in both courses. Dr. Woo is a graduate of St. John's, and received the M. D. and C. P. E. degrees from Johns Hopkins University. He has also attended the School for Health Officers conducted jointly by Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is now the director of the school hygiene department of the Council on Health Education.

A special course in applied physical education will be offered by Mr. Wm. Z. L. Sung, director of athletics at St. John's. Problems and methods in athletic training, athletic supervision and management and athletic coaching will be considered.

An advance course in first aid will be conducted by at least five members of the faculty of the St. John's Medical School. Those who will lecture and demonstrate include Dr. J. C. McCracken, Dr. H. H. Morris, Dr. L. S. Woo, Dr. L. C. Han and Dr. E. Mammen. The course is designed to meet the needs of those engaged in boy scout or girl guide work, in the supervision of athletics. The treatment of many kinds of emergencies will be explained and demonstrated.

Four courses for women alone will be: folk dancing and games, directed by Miss Dora Tong of Ginling College; swimming under Miss Vera V. Barger, and girls' work with Miss Helen E. Rysdorp as instructor. Miss Barger is physical director of the National Committee of the Y. W. C. A. in China and Miss Rysdorp is girls' work secretary of the Shanghai Chinese Y. W. C. A.

IF YOU ARE PALE TRY THIS EXPERIMENT

The Results Will Agreeably Surprise You

If you are pale, have lost appetite and feel weak and depressed, take, after each meal, one of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In a very short time you will be agreeably surprised at the improvement in your health and spirits. You will realize that new blood, rich and red, is flowing through your veins, and you will say, "I actually feel hungry," while your friends will say to you, 'How much better you look!" The reason is that

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS make the rich red blood of health, and this good blood restores the appetite, gives fresh strength to the digestion, revitalises the nerves, imparts new life to the whole system.

Medicine vendors everywhere sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, or post free $1.50 per bottle. $8 for 6 bottles from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

Heavy Sentence For Drug Seller

Sentence of four years' imprisonment was the punishment meted out by Assessor Whitamore and Magistrate Li of the Mixed Court yesterday in the case of a Chinese shopkeeper named Zau Teh-au convicted of keeping opium, morphia and other drugs for sale at 836 North Soochow Road. Another Chinese Sung Zang-young, described as a silk broker, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, a third was dismissed and two others were cautioned.

The place in question was raided by Assistant Commissioner of Police Springfield and other police officers on May 27 and a considerable quantity of opium and other drugs was seized. Some of the latter proved on analysis to be strychnine and some morphia.

CHANGCHOW SILK CROP ONLY FIFTY PER CENT NORMAL

Rain And Cold Weather Do Great Damage; D'Oisy Causes Stir

(China Press Correspondence)

Changchow, Ku., June 3.—The long draught has been broken, the canals are full, and the people are on the whole happy. In the immediate vicinity of Changchow I am told that the silk business is very bad this year. In the first place too much rain and the weather was too cold. Many of the silk worms died when half grown. On a trip to the country we saw them thrown out as rubbish. As a result one may see a large amount of the mulberry trees are still green. Following this comes a low price for the cocoons and we are told that the silk crop is less than fifty percent.

I am just returning from a trip to Nyi Shing, Zoh San and Li Yang and in that section reports are more encouraging, but still the crop is below par. In Li Yang district I saw practically no mulberry leaves on the trees. The cheapest they sold for in the market was $4.00 per picul while at Changchow they sold for as little as $1.00 for three piculs.

Most of the farmers say that their wheat is good and it certainly looks to be. This will help to make up for the loss in the silk. The wheat is now being harvested and some are already planting their rice.

One of the most encouraging things we hear of is the interest taken in the opening of free schools for the common people. I find this is being done not only in the cities but also in some country districts. In some instances they are even going so far as to compel the attendance by the police or local constable being held responsible for school attendance.

There was considerable excitement in this city on the morning of May 29 when the flying machine passed over the city. It is still an interesting subject of conversation. Some claim it was near enough to see the men and the mechanism of the machine.

Our city is rejoicing in more additions to the Missionary community. Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Steel of the M. E. Church South have recently been transferred here to help out in the Trinity Institutional Church work.

We are told that within the next few days parts of the suburbs of the city are to have all-day and night electricity. As yet the local electric firm has not been willing to agree to surrender its rights inside the city. Some who should know whereof they speak say it will not be a great while till the deal is consummated.

The local health organisation is putting on a campaign for exterminating flies and mosquitoes. They began by offering a cash for every fly killed and delivered to certain stations in the city. They will also undertake to improve the sanitation of the city in other ways.

Strikingly Original Prayer Concludes Italian Edition Of Papini's Great Life Of Christ

"A Prayer to Christ," of typically Papinian vehemence and fire, ends the 1923 Italian revised edition of the Life of Christ, which has taken fifth place in the Literary Digest's worldwide poll of ten Twentieth Century classics.

As this powerful prayer is not found in the English translation by Dorothy Canfield Fisher, we are glad to give our readers the following free rendition made especially by M. J. Fortie.

"A PRAYER TO CHRIST"

by Giovanni Papini

Thou art still among us—every day, and forever.

Thou livest near us, one of us, on this earth that is Thine and ours, on this earth that received Thee, a child among children and, justiciable, among thieves. Thou livest with the living on this earth Thou didst love, Thou livest a superhuman life on this earth of men, invisible even to those that seek Thee most, perhaps in the disguise of a poor man who buys his own bread, and nobody looks at him.

But now the time has come for Thee to appear again before us all and give a commanding, irrefutable sign to this generation. O Christ, Thou seest our want, Thou knowest how great and pressing it is, how it cannot be postponed; how deep and real is our anguish, our misery, our despair; Thou knowest how much we need Thy ministry, how necessary it is that Thou shouldst appear again among us.

Let it be even a brief return, a sudden appearance immediately followed by a disappearance as sudden; a coming and a leaving; just one word, one sign, one warning; a quick flash in the heavens, a light in the night, an opening of the sky; just one instant of Thy eternity, one word of Thy silence.

We need Thee, Thee alone, and none else. Thou alone, who lovest us, canst feel for all of us that compassion that each one of us feels for himself. Thou alone canst feel how immeasurably great is the need of the world for Thee in this hour. Nobody else, not one of those that live; not one of those that snore in the mud of worldly glory can give what will save us from the greatest need of all, the need of the soul.

All need Thee, those that know it not more than those that know it. The hungry ones look for bread, but it is for Thee that they hunger; those athirst believe they need water, but it is Thy quenching grace that they need; the sick, lame and blind seek for physical health, whereas the lack of Thee is the disease that afflicts them. Those after beauty in the world seek, without knowing it, Thou alone, who art Beauty whole and perfect. Those that seek after truth are unknowingly seeking Thee who art the only Truth worth knowing; and those that vainly yearn for peace yearn for Thee, the only Peace in which troubled hearts can find rest. They call Thee, and know it not, and their call is infinitely more agonizing than ours, who know of Thee.

We do not seek Thee for the vanity of beholding Thee with mortal eyes as did the men of Judea and Galilee, nor for the foolish pride of winning Thee with our supplications. We do not ask for a spectacular glorious descent from the sky, for the angels' trumpets, or the apocalyptic ritual of a last coming, or the splendor of a Transfiguration. It is Thee alone that we want, Thy poor body wounded and transfixed under the torn shirt of a humble laborer; we wish to behold the eyes that can see through the gross flesh of the breast and of the heart; that heal with their wrath and wound with their tenderness. And we wish to hear Thy voice, that voice so sweet that it frightens the demons, so strong that it charms little children.

Thou knowest how great is in this hour the need of one look, of one word from Thee. Thou knowest that a look of Thine can upset and change our souls, that Thy voice can call us out of the filth of our present shame; O Christ Jesus, Thy presence is urgent and undeferrable in this age that knows Thee not.

Thou camest the first time to save: Thy birth, Thy mission, Thy word, Thy work, Thy life, Thy sacrifice were to save. And now, in these days, gray and wicked, in these years that represent an unbearable compound accumulation of horror and sorrow, our great immediate need is to be saved of Thee!

If Thou wert a nagging and jealous God, spiteful and vindictive, a God merely just, then Thou wouldst not listen to our prayer. Because men have wreaked upon Thee all possible and conceivable evil, and more of it after Thy death than be-

A giant dog guarding a woman and baby on the snows
Wolves in a gaunt, gray, slinking circle—waiting!

Stronghoart, the dog that created a furore in "The Silent Call," springing through drama and thrill a play of the famine lands. You've never seen one like it. Irene Rich and Lee Shumway head great cast of players. A score of wolves in pack fight and pillage. The biggest picture that ever came out of the north.

SOMETHING GREAT FOR THE KIDDIES, THEY'LL LOVE STRONGHEART.

B. A. T. TOPICS, American School Children's Spring Festival, Shanghai's new fire engine, Chinese Boy Scouts and Girls in Nanking, American Sailors off the men-of-war, World's largest locomotive in Mongolia, Removal of ashes of former American Minister, Paul Reinsch for final internment.

fore. Millions of Judases have kissed Thee after having sold Thee, and not just once or for 30 pieces of silver. Legions of Pharisees, swarms of Caiaphas have pronounced Thee a criminal, an evil-doer, worthy to be re-crucified. Nay, they have re-crucified Thee millions of times in thought and in will. Unspeakable men, in endless gangs, have slapped Thee and spat on Thy face. The lackeys, the beadles, the doorkeepers, those armed to protect unrighteous power and wealth, have whipped Thy shoulders and stained Thy forehead with blood. Thousands like Pontius Pilatus, clad in black or in red, just out of the bath, anointed, perfumed, shaved and combed, have handed Thee over a thousand times to the hangman after publicly acknowledging Thy innocence. Countless mouths, filthy and drunken, have clamored thousands of times that liberty be granted thieves, malefactors and self-confessed murderers in order to drag Thee again and again to the top of Golgotha and there nail Thee on the tree with nails forged by fear and riveted by hate.

But Thy forgiveness shelters everything and everybody, forever. Having lived among us, one of us, the plummet of Thy love has fathomed the depths of our sinful nature. We are a bastard mixture, abortions that love to wallow in their own filth as a drunkard wallows in his vomit; like dead laves transient and restless, foolishly choosing to be our own executioners. We denied Thee because Thou wert too pure; we sentenced Thee to death because Thy life was our death sentence. All generations are like the generation that crucified Thee—it matters not how Thou comest they refuse Thee, like those of whom it is said: "I played to you, and you did not dance; I lamented to you, and you did not weep." This we have done for 60 generations.

The time has come when men are more drunken than then, yet more thirsty. In no age as in this one have we felt the consuming thirst for a supernatural salvation. In no time, as we remember it, has abjection been so abject, thirst so burning. This earth is a hell lighted by a condescending sun. In it men are wallowing in filth and tears from which, frantic and disfigured they rise once in a while to cast themselves in crimson rivers of blood, hoping to cleanse themselves thereby. They have just emerged from such a ferocious ablution only to fall again, after an awful massacre, in the same common filth. Plagues have followed wars; earthquakes have followed plagues; immense armies of dead men, enough to people an empire, are rotting under a thin covering of dust. And yet we continue to kill, and kill, and kill—as if those armies of dead men were only the first installment of a universal destruction. Rich nations condemn to starvation poor nations; rebels murder their former masters; masters hire murderers to kill the rebels; new dictators, taking advantage of the general debacle of systems and regimes, lead whole nations to massacre, famine and annihilation.

The bestial love of each man for himself, of each caste for itself, of each people for itself and itself alone, is even greater and blinder now after the years during which hate seared the earth with fire, strew it with graves and boneyards. After the common and universal defeat, selfish love has multiplied hate; hate of the petty against the great; of the discontented against the suspicious; of the former servants, now masters, against their enslaved masters of yesterday; of the rising castes against the declining ones. The greed for the superfluous has bred the need for the indispensable; the urge of pleasure, the gnawing of disease; the thirst for liberty, a tightening of bonds.

Poisonous drugs, abominable indulgences, alcohol, gambling, fighting, every day these executioners take their toll of those that survived four years of war. After those dreadful years St. Business and St. Money receive more than ever the adoration of men. Wotan, Mammon, and Priapus, Force, Wealth, and Flesh, this is the trinity ruling the world of men.

What of the strong-knitted family of old? Marriage is undermined by insidious enemies—even children, the children Thou lovest, are becoming a curse and we try to avoid them by cheating nature and ourselves. What of communities, cities, and nations? There are no Kingdoms and no Republics; only Plutocracies and Demagogies.

Thou knowest all these things, O Christ Jesus. Thou knowest that the cycles have brought back the fullness of time, that this world, struck with a bestial fever, deserves to be either destroyed—or saved through Thy love and mediation. Thy Church alone, established by Thee on Peter's rock, the Church one and universal still towers high above a muddy and angry sea. Made stronger by attacks, greater by schisms, younger by the passing centuries, overshadowed by Thy Spirit, it calls out to all, even to those who, born within it, still prefer to live outside of its laws.

It has been said: "If thou art alone I am with thee; lift the stone, thou wilst find Me; carve the wood, and there am I." But to find Thee in solitude, stone and wood, we need the will to seek Thee, the vision to see Thee. And today most of us will not, cannot find Thee. Unless they feel the touch of Thy hand upon their heads, unless they hear the call of Thy voice within their hearts, men will continue to seek vainly after themselves, and nobody can find himself unless he finds Thee.

O Christ, we the deniers, the criminals, the malefactors, born out of time, we, who yet remember Thee and strive to live with Thee—though far separated from Thee—we the last ones, despairing, back from the pit and the precipice, we pray to Thee for Thy return among the men that murdered Thee, among the men that still murder Thee. Come and restore to us, murderers in the dark, the light of Thy true life.

After Thy resurrection, Thou didst appear more than once to the living, to those that believed that they hated Thee, to those who would have loved Thee even without Thy divine origin. Thou didst show Thy face, they heard Thy voice. Thou wert Light and Word to Paul on the road to Damascus, Fire and Blood in Francis' cave, Love faithless and perfect in the cell of Catherine and Theresa. If those deserved to see Thee by right of their passionate hope, may we not deserve to behold Thee by right of our barren despair? Those souls called out to Thee by the power of their innocence; ours call to Thee from the helpless depths of degradation and misery. As Thou didst recompense the ecstasy of the saints, heed Thou the weeping of the damned!

Thou camest to the sick, not to the well; to find the sheep that were lost, not for those safe in the fold. Thy Message was never needed so much as today, was never forgotten or despised as today. The Kingdom of Evil has reached its culmination, and the redemption for which mankind is groping can be found only in Thy Kingdom.

The bloody experiment draws to its end. Forsaking the gospel men have found desolation and death. More than one dread promise, more than one threat has come to pass. Our only hope is in Thee, in Thy return. If Thou failest to come and awaken men from their drunken sleep in the stinking filth of this hell, it must be that the penalty is still too light for our betrayal, that Thy law is not yet fulfilled, that its order cannot be changed. Thy will be done, now and forever, on earth as in heaven.

Yet we, the last ones, we shall wait. We shall wait for Thee every day, in spite of our shame, against the impossible. And all the love we can press from our niggardly hearts shall be Thine, O Crucified One, once tormented for the love of men, and who now tormentest us with the searching power of Thy implacable love.

(From Giovanni Papini, Storia di Cristo, Third Corrected Edition.)

Balloonists Meet Tragic Fate In U.S.

"Health Better than it has been for Years."

Our portrait is of Mrs. WOODROW, of 58, Robinson Road, Tooting, London, England, whose husband writes:

"My wife has suffered very badly for the past four or five years with Piles, being unable to sleep at night or get any relief during the day. She tried several advertised remedies, none of which did her any good. Some three weeks ago she thought she would try 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and before she had taken half a bottle she was better, and by the time she had finished the second bottle she was quite cured. She can now sleep well, eat well, and get about her work, and her general health is better than it has been for years." In a further letter some eight months later Mr. Woodrow writes: "I am pleased to say that since my wife's cure of Piles in September, 1918, there has been no sign of return of the trouble."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout. Pleasant to take and free from anything injurious. Of all Dealers. Ask for and see you get.

Notice To Subscribers

In an endeavor to produce an even better paper than was formerly the case—an endeavor which the steadily growing popularity of THE CHINA PRESS has proved to be successful—the publishers have recently increased the editorial staff, supplemented the cable and foreign correspondence services, added a pictorial news section, and improved the editorial and feature contents. These improvements naturally entail a much heavier cost of production, and thus we are reluctantly compelled to increase our rates of subscription, as from April 1st, as follows:

One Year	Mex. $28.00
Six Months	" 15.00
Four Months	" 10.50
One Month	" 2.75

Postage to outports, etc. $6.00 per annum extra.

Under the new rates subscribers will still obtain THE CHINA PRESS more cheaply than it can be purchased day by day on the street. Allowing 312 publishing days to the year (230 weekdays and 52 Sundays), the annual cost, if purchased on the street, is $36.40.

YOU CAN BE CERTAIN OF QUALITY WHEN YOU BUY RUBBER GOODS

There are just two ways of spending your money when you buy one or more of the thousands of different articles made of or in combination with rubber.

One way is to take chances—to gamble and buy just a tire, inner tube, hot-water bottle or pair of over shoes.

The other way is to buy the good rubber products of the largest manufacturer of rubber goods in the world, the United States Rubber Company.

When you buy any article bearing the trade mark of the United States Rubber Company you know it is good—uniformly good. For now, with the United States Rubber Company's two new revolutionary discoveries—The New Sprayed Rubber and The New Web Cord—you are assured of the purest rubber ever produced, with its natural properties unimpaired and uniform quality throughout.

Look for the "U.S." trade mark when next you buy anything made of or with rubber.

JAPAN-CHINA TRADE IN 1923 SHOWS LARGE IMPROVEMENT

Friendlier Feeling Reflected In Figures

EXPORTS LARGER

Y. 50,000,000 Increase Indicates Boycott Weakening

A more friendly feeling between China and Japan is reflected in the trade between the two countries last year. In the exports from Japan to China proper there was an excess of Y.147,000,000, or roughly an increase of Y.50,000,000 over the previous year. These figures indicate a decided weakening of the Chinese boycott against Japanese goods.

The volume of Japan's overseas trade for the year, according to official figures, shows a gain over the preceding year for Asia, Europe, the two Americas and other countries, both as regards exports and imports but when examined in some detail, more or less difference in the general trend of trade is observed in the various countries.

Broadly speaking, exports to Kwangtung Province, Straits Settlements, Dutch Indies, Russian Siberia, Philippine Islands, Mexico and Hawaii declined, while in the import trade a similar drop is seen as regards China, Hongkong, the Straits Settlements, French Indo-China, Philippine Islands, Holland, Argentine and Brazil.

BIG SILK INCREASE

The total value of exports during the year amounted to Y.1,637,450,000, an increase of Y.384,610,000 over the previous year. With the exception of coal, copper, cement, paper and beer, which declined more or less, all the other staple articles of export recorded an increase, this being especially striking with raw silk, which surpassed the previous year's figure by as much as Y.252,920,000.

Cotton yarns and cotton fabrics, silk fabrics, tea, hosiery, refined sugar, etc., also made a marked advance in volume. The increased consumption in America for purposes other than weaving, accounts for raw silk. The larger shipment of semi-manufactured goods is traceable to the economic recovery in Europe and America, while for the diminished exports, the inactivity of trade with India and the South Seas and other countries was responsible.

The excess of imports from British India was Y.157,000,000, or about Y.30,000,000 larger than the previous year. With England the excess of imports was Y.178,00,000, or an increase of Y.27,000,000 over the previous year.

GERMAN IMPORTS

A sudden swelling of imports from Germany pushed up the adverse balance to Y.107,000,000, an increase of Y.62,000,000. On the other hand, in the trade with the United States, the balance which was in favor of imports for the preceding year, turned around and returned excess exports amounting to Y.136,000,000, for which the item of raw silk contributed most. Generally speaking, it was chiefly owing to the activity of this particular item of exports that the balance could recover a far more normal aspect than in the previous year.

To understand present economic conditions in Japan, it is necessary to go back to a review of 1922. In the early months of that year the process of post-bellum readjustments, having been arrested by the temporary boom of the preceding year, was still to be completed. Prices stood at a higher level than in other countries, and consequently various kinds of goods were imported in increasing quantities.

The excess of imports over exports went on swelling from month to month, and money was in great demand for settling the adverse balance, which naturally had a tightening effect on the money market. In the circumstances, the money rate began to rise from the beginning of the year. The adverse condition in the money market continued, with some variation, resulting finally in the present low exchange value of the yen.

As regards the movement of specie for the year, the outflow of gold was nil in contrast to the inflow of Y.925,925. The export of silver amounted to Y.2,180,500 against an import of Y.746,386.

England Plans 2,500,000 Houses

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 3.—In the House of Commons today, the details of the Government's housing policy were outlined by Mr. J. Wheatley, the Minister of Health, moving the financial resolution on which the Housing Bill will be founded.

The Minister stated that the program aimed at producing 2,500,900 houses over a period of 15 years, beginning with 90,000 in 1925 and rising to 225,000 in 1934.

Mr. Wheatley declared that an agreement had been reached with the building industry which stipulated for the production of at least two-thirds of the foregoing figures. The brick combine had agreed to fix the prices prevailing in January, 1924, and legislative steps would be taken to prevent profiteering. A subsidy would be paid amounting to £9 annually over a period of 40 years, but the subsidy would be reviewed every few years in the light of prevailing circumstances.

German Bonds To Be Conference Theme

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 1.—The House of Representatives has requested the Premier and the Ministers of Foreign Affairs and Finance to attend a special meeting of the House tomorrow, and give statements regarding the progress of the Sino-German negotiations concerning the German bonds question. It is reported unofficially today that these Ministers will not be able to comply.

SEES INDUSTRIES HIT BY AMERICAN IMMIGRATION ACT

American Capital May Be Driven To Europe To Avoid High Wages

Philadelphia, April 22.—Need for economising in labor due to the shortage of man power growing out of our new immigration policy must increase the tendency toward mass production in American industries, Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, Jr., economist of the Chase National Bank, of New York, told the Philadelphia Association of Credit Men at their annual meeting tonight.

"When land and capital are scarce and dear and men are abundant," he said, "men become cheap. When men are scarce and land and capital are abundant, wages tend to be high. Wages in the United States would have been very much higher than they were in the ten years preceding the war if we had adopted in 1904 the immigration policy which we now have. Even if prices should go back to pre-war levels, wages will not go back to prewar leyels while our present immigration policy continues.

"I think that all humane men must welcome the improvement in the position of American labor which this involves. Where high wages grow out of high output per man, they are economically desirable and may be expected to continue. Wages depend on productivity, and this elementary truth is not, as a rule, adequately appreciated by American labor. High wages are to be welcomed because they mean for a very large body of our people better conditions of life and better opportunities. But it is necessary for us to take stock as to the significance of this for our industrial situation, in the interest of labor no less than in the interest of business management and capital.

"The first significant change in business policy that is required is that we must economise labor much more than we were obliged to do in the prewar period. With the intensified scarcity of labor in the United States, as compared with Europe, we shall have to shift still further toward mass production and to surrender still further to Europe those lines of industry which call for a great deal of hand work.

"In the second place, we may expect a very considerable shifting within the United States as between different parts of the country. It has been the northern half of the Atlantic seaboard which has received, of course, the great flow of immigration, and with the checking of that flow it has been the northern half of the Atlantic seaboard where the rise in wages has been most rapid. Industry, consequently, has been shifting from the Atlantic seaboard to other parts of the country.

"In cotton textiles, notably, there has been a very decided shifting from New England, where wages are very high, to the South, where wages are still much lower. Labor, moreover, has been shifting from the South to the North, and from the country to the industrial centers. These movements will tend to go on, with the resultant leveling up of wages in the interior of the country, and ultimately a leveling down of wages on the Atlantic seaboard.

"A contributing factor is the higher general level of freight rates which tends to encourage in any case the development of local manufacturing centers close to the source of raw materials in various parts of the country. Another contributing factor is the depression of agriculture as compared with manufacturing.

"A third result of the situation may be an increased inducement to American capital to seek foreign investment. If European labor cannot come to the United States to work with our relatively more abundant capital, there will be increased advantage for American capital to go outside the country to work with the cheaper labor. Abundant natural resources in the United States, however, even in combination with highpriced labor, will still offer great inducements for the employment of American capital."

TRADE IN MEXICO NOW REPORTED TO BE IMPROVING

Merchants Report Sales Running To 75 Per Cent. Of Normal

Mercantile business in Mexico is getting back toward normal after the stagnation caused by the rebellion which broke out in December, reports Franklin Johnson, publisher of the "American Exporter," who returned the other day from a business trip to Mexico City. "Anyone who imagines that Mexico is not on the map commercially at the present time would be surprised to see the activity there," said Mr. Johnston.

"It is true that business in December and January was at a standstill, but February showed a gain, and in March and early April many merchants reportee their sales running 75 percent of normal.

"Each day merchants showed greater optimism. For example, one man who said his business was not 10 percent of normal the day I arrived, told me ten days later that he found a pile of inquiries on his desk that morning.

"Of course the current volume of business depends on the line. Heavy machinery is not moving as far as safety razors, for example, of which one popular make is running 80 percent of normal. One radio shop never had less than eight fans in line buying goods, and kept open late into the evening. A leading automobile firm was running 50 percent of normal. One of the busiest men I met was the leading cash register importer whose sales were excellent. I met several merchants who were actually awaiting goods, not by post either, but in carload lots. I also ran into a surprisingly large number of cases of entirely new business that was being placed.

"The thing that impressed me most in Mexico was the extent to which the local merchants are using up-to-date merchandising methods to stimulate sales. They are not sitting idly by waiting for political conditions to improve, but are very much on the job along modern merchandising lines. One store was running an extremely clever window demonstration, for example, on pencils. Advertising in the daily newspapers by merchants was very much in evidence and a good deal of attention is being paid to circularising. Another significant thing was the number of establishments that were moving to larger and better quarters.

"All this courage and energy on the part of the merchants in Mexico is worth calling attention to because this recent rebellion, unlike the previous ones, virtually stopped business for a few weeks. The situation has been complicated also by the fact that the Government is in arrears both in salaries and in payments to merchants.

"It would be inaccurate to say that Mexico business men look for anything like a boom now that the rebellion is virtually ended, the Mexico Government recognised by the United States, and diplomatic relations resumed once more. Not until the election of the new president in July and the determination of that president's policy toward capital and labor, will the present situation really be settled.

"Yet with business in Mexico so disturbed in December and January, America actually shipped more to that market in January and February than in the same months last year, so that a moderate increase throughout the year may reasonably be looked for."

JAPANESE UNDER-SELLING INDIANS IN PIECE GOODS

High Tariff Permits Of Dumping In Other Countries

An inquiry into under-selling by Japanese in the Indian piece goods trade has been demanded by the Bombay Millowners' Association. The demand was the result of an interesting correspondence between the Collector of Customs and the committee of the Millowners' Association. The Collector of Customs had forwarded to the Millowners' Association the complaint of the Hosiery Manufacturers' Association, Calcutta, that hosiery goods manufactured by them were selling at Rs. 10 to Rs. 12 a dozen while somewhat similar imported Japanese hosiery was selling at Rs. 10-8 to Rs. 10 per dozen. Inquiries in the Bombay hosiery market proved that there also Japanese goods undersold indigenous goods by more than 25 percent and that they compared favorably with Indian products. The inferiority and dearness of Indianmade hosiery, in the Government's opinion, could not be attributed altogether to the antiquated machinery used in that country. It was not known if Japanese manufacturers had been receiving any country or state aid from the Japanese Government but in 1908 the Japanese Consul denied that any state bounty was being given. Since then no information was available.

Replying to the Collector of Customs, the Committee of the Millowners' Association stated that the superiority of Japanese hosiery was probably due to the yarns of American cotton being unlike those in India, where they were made of Indian Cotton. On the question of underselling, the Committee opined that it was owing to a very high tariff in Japan which protected Japanese manufacturers against foreign competition, at the same time allowing them to sell their goods more cheaply in other markets. On the question of State aid or bounty, the Committee were unable to give any definite information, but suggested that the British Trade Commissioner in Yokohama be approached.

Concluding, the Committee pointed out the necessity of investigating what they called the more serious problem of Japanese competition in the piece goods trade and invited the Collector of Customs' attention to the Association's reference to the Government of India urging the abolition of the cotton excise duties.

The repeal of cotton excise duties was referred to by the Millowners' Association in January last at the instance of a sub-committee consisting of Sir Dinshaw Wacha and Manamohan Das Ramji. The resolution was communicated to the Government of India in February in conformity with the Association's demand which was supported by the Indian Merchants' Chamber, the Upper India Chamber of Commerce and the Ahmedabad Millowners' Association. Mr. Kasturibhai Lalbai recently moved a resolution in the Assembly to the effect but the discussion was postponed.

Marconi Predicts Great Results For Wireless 'Phone

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 4.—Wireless telephony has been successfully tested between England and Australia by Marconi stations. Signor Marconi, interviewed, said that they used the new system but without the "beam." He predicted that distance would be no obstacle with the new system, which comprises something more than the beam.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, June 3.—The Turkish press devotes long articles to the concentration of Italian troops at Rhodes. The Turkish Government has ordered measures to be taken against any eventuality.

According to the London Times an insurrection has broken out at Scutari. Six thousand insurgent nationalists marched on Tirana. The Ministry has resigned. Martial law has been declared.

Paris, June 3.—Lord Robert Cecil, who has just returned from Scandinavia told journalists at the Hague with regard to Germany and the League of Nations that the Reich would have been admitted in 1920 if it had desired, but a large party in Germany wanted to have their hands free for another war.

The Daily Mail says that as long as Germany remains an immense entrenched camp, anxiety will exist among the neighboring nations. The German peril constrains France to maintain a large army and air force.

The American Airmen Reach The Continent Of Asia!

THE American airmen reached the Continent of Asia yesterday and Shanghai gave them a genuine welcome in keeping with this great accomplishment of flying entirely across the Pacific Ocean. Shanghai has seen airplanes before, was properly thrilled when Captain D'Oisy, the intrepid French ace, landed here a few days ago on his way from Paris to Tokio, and when the Italians came through a few years ago on their trip from Rome to Tokio—but this was the first time that Shanghai had ever seen airplanes arrive from beyond the Sea. There was a thrill in this event for the spectator comparable only to the feeling of those at Canton who saw the first ship from the West, those who read the first message from the West delivered from the end of a submarine cable or more recently the radio dispatch from the boundless ether.

In view of the fact that the world's first use of airplanes on an extensive scale was for purposes of destruction on the battle fields of Europe, it is significant that Asia's first glimpse of planes from the West manned by men from the West was of an entirely peaceful and friendly nature. Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, of the U. S. Army Air Service and commanding officer of the expedition, in a statement issued upon his landing in Japan a few days ago, said:

"We should like to feel that by our crossing the broad Pacific, we have been instrumental in cementing more firmly the long existing friendly relations between the Orient and the United States."

The world has been watching these daring birdmen since they left their base in Southern California, as they flew up along the coast of the North American Continent to Seattle and then as they hopped off on the unexplored course from island to island across the North Pacific. There have been those who said the attempt was a foolhardy experiment and the doubters were confirmed in their opinions when Major Frederick Martin failed to reach his distant base and for several days was thought to have been lost in the uncharted seas and islands and ice-floes of the Arctic Circle. But in spite of the loss of their leader, these Vikings of modern days persevered through fogs and snows and weather which make the tourist in his comfortable cabin on a North-Pacific ocean liner shiver. Finally they reached the last speck of land covered by the American flag, a little island of the Aleutian Chain, and then they started off directly into a bank of fog in the direction which their compasses and maps said Japan was located. The fact that they reached their destination is a tribute not only to their courage but to the scientific development which has already taken place in this new method of rapid traveling. Their trip down along the rim of Japan has been a continuous ovation, for even the lowliest Japanese coolie fisherman realised the significance of this enterprise.

And now they are on the Continent of Asia. They have spanned the broad Pacific already spanned by the palatial steamship, the rusty cable and the waves of ether. Asia has a new means of contact with the West and may it always be as peaceful and friendly as was exemplified in the graceful landing made yesterday on the Whangpoo. The fact that they landed safely constitutes a tribute to the foresight of the local American officials, the municipal officials and the Chinese authorities, as well as to the skill of the airmen.

Several years have elapsed since Langley launched his first airplane over the surface of the Potomac River at Washington, D. C., in 1896 and then sorrowfully watched it founder in the river. But it did fly a short distance and a new method of getting over the surface of the earth was born. Today, less than thirty years, after, other Americans have improved on his invention and now they have crossed the broadest of all the oceans. What aviation will mean in emancipating mankind and broadening his outlook and activities, we may only guess at and speculate upon at present, but that something big is in store for the world all must realise.

Turning To War On Disease

THAT remarkable scientist Tesla was not long ago declaring that, by releasing the energy of atoms, war would become such a terrible business that it would no longer pay any nation lightly to embark upon such an enterprise. Latterly Mr. Grindell Matthews has been claiming extraordinary powers for his so-called "Death Ray," of which very few people in this part of the world appear to have any definite idea. We have had a surfeit of talk about the war of the future being indescribably appalling, and it is, therefore, not a little refreshing to hear now that it would not be unprecedented in medical history if it should come to pass that some of the gases invented during the war for the destruction of human life also can be used for its preservation. Already, and long, doctors have numbered among their best remedies for diseases substances which are deadly poisons if administered in sufficient quantities, and now in the same way they have been testing the therapeutic power of chlorine gas in dealing with maladies of the respiratory organs.

This has been done especially at the Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland, in the United States, where Government chemists are at work in search of defensive devices against enemies using poison gases. That, at least, is the way their operations are described; but it is fairly safe to suspect that they are not indifferent to any discoveries they may make that will serve for attack on an enemy. Incidentally, however, they have tried the effect of chlorine gas on about a thousand persons with "colds" and like maladies, including bronchitis. Behind these efforts was the fact that, just as in Jenner's day there was a belief among country folk that milkmaids never caught smallpox, so there had arisen a belief that no worker in the factories dealing with chlorine ever had influenza, even when the epidemics of it were sparing few others, and that they also were free from common colds. Probably this immunity was somewhat exaggerated, but there seems really to have been "something in it"—quite enough to justify the experiments that were undertaken and to explain the excellence of the results achieved. As real doctors are doing this work, they are making only cautious claims as to the extent of their success, and have deferred definite announcements until other investigators have gone over the same ground and ascertained whether or not the gas is equally efficacious in their hands.

As "colds" are among the most troublesome of human maladies, and far from a trivial one—they claim their ravages in Shanghai particularly at this time of the year when the privet has begun to bloom—and as, when colds once get well started, the doctors have been able to do little either to cure or to shorten them, the discoveries made at the Edgewood Arsenal, if confirmed, will take an important place in medical history. Both the Journal of the American Medical Association and its contemporary, American Medicine, take seriously the reports coming thence and hold them as justifying hope that chlorine "will become a valuable adjunct of our medical armamentarium." Indeed, the second of the journals mentioned goes so far as to foresee as something more than possibilities "public inhalariums, with comfortable lounging rooms, in which patients may rest for an hour while they are "relieved of annoying symptoms involving the mucous areas of the nose, throat, trachea, and perhaps the larger bronchi."

In these places, if they ever exist, the air will be charged with chlorine gas in the exact proportion—.015 milligram per litre—which has been found safe for humans and fatal to bacteria; and an hour there can be expected to cure a "cold" in its first stages. The treatment must be early, as the action of the gas is superficial—it is not sufficiently penetrative to sterilise tonsilar crypts or any deep-seated infection.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

THE PAST

A good deal of morbid nonsense has been said and written and thought about the Past.

The Past is irrevocable, we have been told in sermon and story—you cannot escape the past—the Past can never be changed— and so on, and so on—the whole trend of this thought being that the Past is a kind of Sherlock Holmes dogging our steps forever, a sinister nemesis waiting its chance to strike us down, the account-book of an angry God sure to confront us some day.

All of this is morbid, most of it is dramatic; the under-lying sentiment of it is false, weakening, and septic.

As a matter of fact, our Past, as Maeterlinck says, depends upon our Present and changes with it.

What the Past is depends upon the way you are now using it. Its effect upon your destiny will be gauged by how you translate it into the Future.

If we brood over the Past, and weaken ourselves with vain regrets, with self-contempt and remorse, then it will poison and undo us.

But no matter what it contains of our sin or folly, we can, by a right use of it now, make it minister to our welfare.

First, we can learn wisdom from it. By it we can realize our faults to be corrected and our offenses to be atoned for. And with this wisdom we can go on to better things.

The only true repentance is so to use the Past as to enable us to build a better future. Weeping and wailing and brooding are the luxuries of morbidity.

The Past is beneath our feet. We can go down into it and wallow in impotent grief, or we can step upon it to higher things.

The great enemy of life is Despair. The great friend of life is Hope. Despair paralyzes, ruins. Hope energizes, "for we are saved by hope."

Up! Face the future! Whatever the Past has been, let it nerve you to spend your remaining days in faithfulness and loyalty to your better self!

So Tennyson, with clear insight, with sane instinct for moral truth, wrote:

"I hold it truth, with him (Goethe) who sings
To one clear harp in divers tones,
That men may rise on stepping-stones
Of their dead selves to higher things."

Life As It Is

BY THOMAS L. MASSOS

NO SUCH THING AS TIME

That there is no such thing as time might be illustrated by the advertisement inserted in a local paper by a dancing master, "Learn to dance the toddle. Cleopatra invented it, and that is how she ensnared Napoleon."

At first we are inclined to believe that this could not happen. But anyone who wished to believe in incarnation would declare that Cleopatra was reincarnated in Josephine. The rest is easy, for, admitting this to be so, there is no doubt that Josephine led Napoleon a dance. The question as to whether it was a "toddle" or not is insignificant.

In order to understand that there is really no time, we must rid ourselves of certain notions. Suppose, for example, you loan a friend some money and he promises to return it at a certain time. And then he doesn't. Do you not see that the trouble lies with you and not with him? He has no sense of time, and also the money. If you had had no sense of time in the beginning you wouldn't have loaned it to him.

You will also notice that those friends who never keep their engagements with you are always the most delightful companions. They may always keep you waiting, but when they do come they are worthwhile. The trouble lies with you also in this case. For if you would follow their rule you would never be worrying about their seeming procrastination.

It is such an amazing thing, this idea of there being no time, that it almost takes one's breath away. For instance, if you can once get rid of it, don't you see that you immediately become immortal? In the first blush of your newly found freedom you may ask, "But was I always like this?" And the answer is, "Sure."

It is on record that a number of the world's greatest men knew beforehand what they would do. Hannibal predicted his victory over Rome. It is said of both Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt when they were very young, that the prediction was made they would be Presidents. If you only stop to think of it for a moment you will see that you haven't done a single thing since you were born. You have remained stationary. Events have plastered you with certain surroundings—let me express the hope that they are pleasant.

But you are just the same,

Pre-War Russia In Exile

Sofia.—It is not the Russians who are in exile in the Balkan Peninsula. It is pre-war Russia itself. In south-eastern Europe, in Hungary, in Austria, in Germany, the Russians whom one sees in numbers varyingly large, in the streets, are the Russians who made Russia what it was before the war, before the disasters she suffered in the first half of the World War, before the revolution that punished the authors of those disasters and put the present regime in the saddle.

The Russia in exile represents the Russia that was. It shows a cross-section of the virtues and the vices of that Russia. It also forces upon the mind of the thoughtful observer the almost unbelievable fact that Russia is no more.

Mingled with a large crowd of strangers, mostly Russians, at the Belgrade "uprava," or prefecture, to get a signed and stamped document, with my photograph, permitting me to remain in the Serbian capital—and now the capital of Jugoslavia—for not more than two weeks, recently, I came face to face with this Russia that is in exile. The applicants for permission to remain in the city for awhile were being kept in line by a smart, rather peremptory man in uniform. We were ordered, as if on the drill-ground, to form in a line, single file. Just in front of me was a man in Russian uniform, who showed plainly that he was trying to keep up his standards.

His uniform was frayed, but it was carefully brushed, and had been sedulously mended, from time to time. He was cleanshaven, and his boots, distinctly the worse for wear, were freshly polished. His personality was inviting.

Waiting my turn in the long line, I engaged him in conversation: "Are you a colonel, sir?"

"I don't wonder that you do not know my rank," he replied. "We do not always wear our insignia. But I am not a colonel, sir. I am a major-general."

I was impressed by the fact that this man of former high rank was not using the past tense. It was evident that he still considered himself in his former atmosphere—or perhaps just stepped out of it for a little while.

"Where did you command, General?"

"I was second in command to Dimitrieff in Przemysl."

"Ah," I said to my major-general in exile, "I still find it impossible to believe that Russia—the old old Russia—is a thing of the past."

He hitched his backbone to an extra degree of erectness, and protested:

"No, sir, the old Russia is not a thing of the past. It is a thing of the present, and a thing of the future. This canaille in Moscow—"

And he shrugged a shoulder—an impotent shoulder, it seemed to me—to indicate a large variety of inexpressible things.

For the Russian refugees—in the Balkans, at least—though they have been cast on a lee shore by the tidal wave, do not seem to believe that there was a tidal wave. They give the impression that the destroying torrent was a spring freshet, and that the stream will return to its banks—well, at almost any time.

They have faith, these Russian refugees. Whether they reason sufficiently, is another question. But their maintenance of certain visible, tangible standards of their past is indisputable. The waitress in the Russian Restaurant in Sofia, whose customers of Russian origin kiss her hand solemnly before they give their orders, is a type of this adherence to standard. This waitress is young, pretty, and has a decided "air." Not much more than five years ago a card to her "at homes" in Petrograd was an event in a young man's social career. Though now she is a servant, dependent upon "tips," her old associates have not forgotten who she was—nor, apparently, do they fail to keep in mind who they hope she may be again.

So, when a general, or a colonel, or a captain, who escaped from Russia with General Wrangel takes a seat in the restaurant, he promptly rises when the "Gospozha" appears to take his order, bows over her hand with a smart German click of the heels, and salutes her as she used to be saluted in the old days. Then he resumes his seat and returns to the realities by giving his order.

Hard is the lot of these refugees, both men and women. They have suffered, practically all of them, a complete reversal in the social scale. A man in frayed uniform, in a long gray coat lined with lamb's wool, was carrying firewood for me up two flights of stairs the other day.

"What uniform is this you are wearing?" I asked him when his task was done.

"A Cossack uniform," he replied, saluting.

"You're a Cossack, then?"

"Yes; a colonel of Cossacks," and a smile overspread his features, which were those of a man accustomed to politeness—and to command.

The larger part of Russia in exile is in military uniform, frayed and so frequently repaired that it is almost beyond further repair. To the streets of Sofia, as to those of Belgrade to a less extent—for the whole of Serbia is an armed camp—the Russians give a decidedly military aspect. With an innate distaste for military display, I asked a uniformed Russian in Belgrade, "Why this military aspect?"

"Because we haven't the money to buy civilian clothes," was his simple and sufficient reply.

Whatever his former station in life, your Russian refugee is a hard worker—when he works. He has descended to the realities of the situation sufficiently to put his hand to anything he can do.

"Apres moi, le deluge!" seems to be the motto of many of these idealistic, if deplorably nonrealistic, survivors of a great empire. But then, most of them do not appear to realise that there ever was a deluge, nor that their terra firma has been definitely swept from under their feet. One must recognise their courage. One characteristic of all Russian refugees, wherever found, whether Orthodox, or Muhammadans, or Buddhists—and all the Kalmacks are of that faith—is their reverence for America. The name "American" is a magic word for them.

They may be irresponsible, inexact, thriftless, perhaps, but they are unquestionably grateful. They are grateful, first of all, to America, which they regard as their traditional and present friend. They are grateful to the countries that give them refuge. They furnish a model of politeness to the peoples among whom they live in the winter of their discontent. They suggest a glimpse of the West to the dweller in the East, evanescent as that glimpse may be. Take them all in all, from Berlin to Constantinople, the Russian refugees—pre-war Russia in exile—are a likable lot, to whom the American in their midst takes instinctively.

But they offer the most tangible explanation of one of the most tangible facts of our day—the fall of the Russian Empire!

More Truth Than Poetry

If I were not compelled to wait
So long for things I wish to claim,
The good old lady known as Fate
Would hear from me no word of blame;
I'd wear a smile, and all the while
I'd dash off little songs of cheer;
But time drifts by; there's much that I
Am doomed to want in vain, I fear.

If things for which I do not care
Were not heaped on me every day
I'm sure that I could do my share
In keeping gloominess away;
I'd join the crew of glad ones who
Insist that doubt must disappear.
But each day brings so many things,
That I'll not need at all this year.

It would be easy to proclaim
To those who are disconsolate
That they may all have wealth or fame
By learning how to work and wait,
If I, myself, were not denied
The shouts of praise I long to hear;
But many of my hopes have died,
And Fortune's distant and austere.

Yet, is it brave to cry aloud
For what I've lost, and might have won,
So that the busy, passing crowd
May know how poorly I have done?
Come on, let's drive ahead, and strive,
Unhindered still by any fear;
Tomorrow may reveal the way
To things we've sought year after year.

The Stuff Of Life

BY WATSON DAVIS

All of the stuff of life is protoplasm. Essentially, all living, active matter in men and amoebae, elephants and eels, trees and turnips, bees and bacteria, is silvery gray jelly that has developed reactions to its surroundings in this world as complex as the human reactions that are called human behavior. The long endured irritation of plants and animals by their environment has taught them and impressed upon them their capacities or tropisms. That is why the plant leans toward the sun and why insects fly toward light.

Not that the resebush and the slug feeding upon it are built of identical material. The physical basis of life is protoplasm, but the varieties and vagaries of this fundamental stuff are as numerous as the different kinds of plants and animals. Their complexity turns the hairs of chemists gray with despair.

Yet, complex as it is, protoplasm consists of four classes of substances: mucilages, proteins, soaps and fatty substances. The cherry gum, that is exuded from a damaged cherry tree and makes a chewing gum satisfactory to youth, is an example of the mucilage constituent. Proteins are albumens much like the white of egg. The soap is similar to the soap we use. The fatty substances are particularly abundant in the brain and nervous tissues of animals and are common in the growing tracts of plants. And in addition to all of these, there must be water, and plenty of it, so that the cells can drink, swell up and grow.

Let Dr. D. T. MacDougal, director of the Carnegie Institution's Laboratory of Plant Physiology, who has been probing deeper and deeper into the heart of life, tell of the way in which the world may have acquired life:

"The first occurrence of masses of matter in which the physical activities led toward the manifestations which we identify with life on the earth's surface is a most enticing subject for speculation. The precursors of living things as we know them, minute masses of primordial jellies, must have been formed in shallow brackish waters warmed by the sun to temperatures much like those which may be observed in tide pools at the present time. The beginnings of life could not have been in the monotonous immensity of the seas, which are in effect a uniform saline solution with but minute variations. Where the sea met the land, however, many new combinations were possible. There was no soil on the land, for soil is largely a product of plants and of animals. The landscape was of bare rocks, sand and water. Rapid alternations of sunshine and clouds with abundant rains would have characterised such a time, and volcanoes may have belched out earth encircling volumes of ashes and gases, some of which would come down with the rains. Hydrocarbons, nitrites, ammonia, hydrogen phosphide, &c., might thus have been thrown together in such manner as to give opportunity for many possible chemical combinations. Only those combinations or aggregations which would result in jellylike masses constituted a possible basis of life. In such manner, possibly, nitrogen from nitrites or from ammonia was coupled with carbon and hydrogen to form a simple amino-acid. Recombinations at higher temperatures in the sun in an atmosphere probably poor in oxygen might lead in the formation of a simple protein or albumen.

"The time has been long since primitive protoplasm thus came together on the shores of primeval seas, as remains of living things are found in the oldest rocks. Whether this first occurred ten million or a hundred million or a thousand million years ago, it is probable that such origination took place many times, and that surviving types have followed a devious path of development."

Even now in suitable places conglomerations of chemicals may be coming together and originating a new life in its simplest form, Dr. MacDougal believes. But it is a strenuous world in which these possible additions to living matter find themselves today. Instead of the simple world, free from bacteria, fungi and other dangerous organisms, which greeted the first life on earth, there now lurk in every drop of water dozens of foes capable of destroying their new competitors.

Of greater promise for the future is the fact that man can closely approximate life itself; there is hope that he may even create it from non-living chemicals. For Dr. MacDougal has made an artificial cell out of a test tube and few simple materials. He has constructed a Robot cell that takes in and gives off material like a living plant cell. But it misses the heights of true life by not being able to grow or reproduce.

How To Weigh The Moon

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS,

I have a letter from a man who asks whether "these statements regarding the measuring the interplanetary space, and the weight of the earth, are merely theoretical or have they been proved to be exact?"

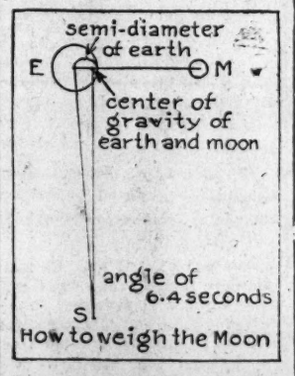
His skepticism is uncalled for. Owing to the unavoidable in accuracy of human eyes and hands, the exactness of the statements referred to is not quite as great as the interest and beauty of the methods on which they are based, but still they are among the most certain of the facts constituting human knowledge.

There is nothing at all mysterious, or even puzzling, in the method, by which a heavenly body, hundreds of thousands or millions of miles beyond our direct reach, is weighed. Let us see, for instance, how we can weigh the moon.

Weighing is merely a process of comparing. We have a standard weight called a pound, and we "weigh" other bodies, larger and smaller, by comparing the pull of the earth's gravity upon them with its pull upon the standard pound weight. The more the earth pulls them the heavier they are.

This simple fact tells us at once how we may go to work to weigh the moon. Its weight depends upon the gravitational pull upon it, as compared with the gravitational pull upon the earth.

But in this case it is not the pull of the earth that we are concerned with, but the pull of the sun, to which both the earth and the moon are alike subjected. It is just like the operation of a "teeter board," or a "steelyard." If a man sits on one side of the fulcrum, or support of the board and a boy on the other side, they will balance even or level, only if their respective distances from the fulcrum are inversely as their weights. By measuring the distances, then, we learn the relative weights.



Suppose the man weighs 200 pounds, and when he sits six feet from the fulcrum the boy on the other side has to sit fifteen feet from the fulcrum in order to balance him. We know immediately that the boy's weight is to the man's as six to fifteen, or one to two-and-a-half, and since the man weighs 200 pounds, the boy's weight must be eighty pounds. (80 multiplied by 15 equals 200 multiplied by 6).

Now, at first sight it may seem absurd to say that, in a similar way we can weigh the moon; but we can. We can just sit on the earth and weigh the moon. All that is required being a little boldness of imagination, and confidence in first principles.

I will show you how. In this picture E is the earth, M the moon, and S the sun; the distances are not in true proportion, but no matter. The moon is seen when at "first quarter," or at right angles to the direction of the sun. Now, as the moon goes around the earth, once a month, the earth, too, swings round, keeping on the opposite side of the center of gravity between the moon and the earth, which acts like the fulcrum of the "teeter-board," or the point of suspension of the steelyard.

The sun's pull upon the earth and the moon is centered at that point, and seen from there the direction of the sun would be at right angles to the line between the earth and the moon. But seen from the earth, and referred to the earth's center (as all astronomical observations are), the direction of the sun is shifted toward the moon, by a very small, but measureable angle, which amounts to 6.4 seconds of arc. Now, we know that the semi-diameter of the earth as seen from the sun, must be 8.8 seconds of arc.

The ratio, then, of the earth's semi-diameter to the distance by which the center of gravity of the earth and moon is shifted toward the moon is 8.8-6.4, which equals 11-8 of the earth's semi-diameter or 2,880 miles. But, the earth is the man and the moon is the boy, and their weights must be inversely as their distance from the point of sunport, which are respectively 2,880 and about 237,500, or as 82½ to 1.

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

BY WM. P. KIRK

Pa, I sed last nite, what is it, Leegul?

It means within the law, Bobbie, sed Pa.

If it is Leegul then it is the saim as saying it is Rite, aint it? I sed.

Hardly, Bobbin sed Pa. Men are sumtimes within the law, Bobbie, sed Pa, that shud be within the lockup guizing at a hunk of dry bread and a tin cup full of water, Bobbie, Pa sed.

I was jest wondering, I said. I was reeding about a rich man saying he had a Leegul rite not to anser questuns.

Yes, sed Pa, it is reely wunderfuf how many Leegul rites sum men has, espesially if they have a raft of Doe, sed Pa. A shipping clerk or a watch-maker of a bookkeaper, sed Pa, has about as many Leegul rites as a rich man, Bobbie, sed Pa, but them poor cusses cant afford to bring a smart lawyer to cort with them, so thare Leegul rites is nevver of much use to them, sed Pa. But it is a grate country, jest the saim, Bobbie, sed Pa.

I guess wen I grow up I will have lots of munny so I can have a bushel of Leegul rites, I sed. Wont that be fun?

It surely will, Bobby, sey Pa. I am glad you have deesided that you will be a rich man. Now all that remains is to step out and git the Doe. That will, of course, be very simpel for a braney yung gentilman like you, Bobbie, sed Pa.

I doant know, sed Ma, it seams to me that many men git munny nowdays in strainge ways, sed Ma. I wuddent want our littel son to git rich by mixing up in skandils like that oil skandil, sed, Ma. It wud brake my hart.

It is braking the harts of a lot of good Am-ericans, sed Pa, to see how sum of thaer noabel congressmen is ackting down yonder, sed Pa. I rote a poem in the offis this P. M., sed Pa, along them lines. Perhaps you and Bobbie wud like to heer it, sed Pa.

If it dsent too long, deer, sed Ma.

Oh, you necdent git skared and think I am going to tak up yure preshus time, sed Pa. I wont reed it all now, sed Pa.

Oh, pleese do, sed Ma. Oh, pleese do.

Yes, Pa, I sed, pleese reed it. So Pa red it.

My country, tis of thee,
Home of the pot of tea,
The teapot doam.
Heer I would gladly toil.
I love thy rocks and soil.
Ware rich men sell the oil
& then sneek hoam!
That is a vary cleever pome.

deer, sed Ma. You are gitting better as you grow older, sed Ma. By the time you are reddy to die you will be a reglar riter, maybe, sed Ma.

That is all I know about Leegul things, it aint much but I guess a lot of Leegul things aint much eether.

VICTORIA FACING POSSIBLE LOSS OF PORT TRADE

Section 28 Of The United States Marine Act Has Reaction

Victoria, B. C., April 29.—Victoria faces the possible loss of over one-third of her deep-sea shipping business if the proposed Section 28 of the United States Marine Act is enforced on June 20, prominent shipping men stated yesterday.

"The situation warrants the gravest concern," stated Mr. A. H. Hebb, general agent here for the Nippon Yusen Kaisha Steamship Company and the Great Northern Railway.

The arrival of nearly one hundred vessels each year with freight and passengers from the Orient will be cancelled, if Section 28 is enforced, it is said, and the ships will proceed direct to Vancouver.

These vessels comprise the fleets of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the Osaka Shosen Kaisha, and the Blue Funnel line.

Section 28 provides for a 5 per-cent preferential rate on all cargoes from and to foreign ports which are carried on American railroads or in American ships.

Thus a 5 percent higher rate would be imposed on freight discharged at Seattle by British or Japanese ships for transhipment to any point in the United States than would be charged on a cargo brought by an American vessel.

Vessels arriving on the North Pacific Coast from the Orient carry for the most part cargoes which must be shipped across the continent to Chicago to New York, or to Montreal. This entails a long rail haul. Under the discriminatory rates of Section 28 foreign vessels could not survive the competition of American vessels.

Japanese and British lines thus would eliminate American ports altogether and ship cargoes across the continent on Canadian railroads have announced their intention of adopting freight rates to meet those projected for American lines under Section 28.

The vessels of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, of the Osaka Shosen Kaisha and of the Blue Funnel line carry, as a rule, less than 500 tons of cargo for Victoria and Vancouver. The bulk of their shipments are destined for Eastern cities and ports on the Atlantic seaboard. They usually carry huge consignments of silk, sometimes worth as much as five or six million dollars. Insurance rates on this precious cargo and the interest on the capital involved render of great value even seconds saved in its handling.

It is argued that the Japanese and British vessels would not call at Victoria to discharge local cargo, valuing the three or four hours necessary for that operation too highly. They would proceed direct to Vancouver to expedite the passage of the major portion of their cargo across the continent to its destination. Local cargo would be transhipped to Victoria from Vancouver, it is believed, after the fashion of the Canadian Pacific liners before the advent of the Admiral Oriental Line in the trans-Pacific trade.

It is possible but not probable, steamship company officials state, that the affected vessel will touch here to discharge mail and to enable passengers to disembark. Few passengers arrive on trans-Pacific liners with Victoria as a final destination. The majority of the travellers on the Japanese liners are bound for Seattle. These would proceed to the Puget Sound port after disembarking at Vancouver. Arrangements would be made, it is believed, to have mail lightered to shore from the passing vessels by local craft.

Should Section 28 be enforced and the three steamship lines named withdraw from Victoria, this port would lose what was variously estimated yesterday by shipping men as from one-third to one-half of its deep-sea shipping business.

The Canadian Pacific, the Admiral Oriental, the Canadian-Australian and the C.G.M.M. would be the only deep-sea liners including Victoria as ports of call in regular schedules of much importance. The Harrison-Direct liner Dictator, which is due here on Friday, will be the first vessel of that company to dock here in several months. In addition to the regular foreign services, tramp steamers would still call here for lumber. The activities of coastwise vessels would in no wise slacken, it is believed.

Vancouver will be the mecca of Pacific lines foreign to the United States should Section 28 come into effect. Shipping men there predict that the business of the Mainland port will be increased fourfold.

Among the steamship lines foreign to the United States which will be affected by Section 28 and which it is said, would probably make Vancouver their headquarters on the Pacific Coast, are the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the Osaka Shosen Kaisha, the Blue Funnel Line, the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, the Yamashita Kisen Kaisha, Mitsui & Co., and Suzuki & Co. The four last named companies make San Francisco their principal shipping point. The Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, operating to and from San Francisco, will also be affected by Section 28. In addition to the vessels of the foregoing fleets there are innumerable tramp freighters from the various maritime countries of the world which would choose Vancouver in preference to American ports under the conditions of Section 28.

The proposed law has met with widespread opposition from American Pacific Coast ports and there is a possibility that the opponents of the measure may succeed in effecting its postponement.

Reserve Judgment In Suit To Restore Conjugal Rights

Judgment was reserved by Judge Sir Skinner Turner of the British Supreme Court yesterday in the action brought by Mrs. Lena Brook, nee Lena Roth, against her husband, Edwin Brook, asking for restitution of conjugal rights.

The petitioner, represented by Mr. M. Reader Harris, alleged that she was married to the respondent in 1912 and that in August, 1923, he left her and refused to return.

Respondent, represented by Mr. Ranald G. McDonald, in his answer alleged that petitioner had a violent and uncontrolled temper, on many occasions had been guilty of violent conduct in the presence of her guests, had frequently assaulted him, frequently threatened him with violence and used offensive language to him and that she had admitted since marriage that she had committed adultery with various persons.

In the witness box, the petitioner denied in toto her husbands allegations, said she wished to live with him and that he had refused to return to her and had told her he wished a divorce at any cost. Respondent, in the box, denied having threatened to bring the allegations mentioned unless petitioner got a divorce and gave a number of instances in which petitioner was alleged to have assaulted him or acted in a violent manner.

Indian Congress Members Praise Gopi, Murderer

(Reuter's Service)

Calcutta, June 3.—The Bengal Provincial Conference, consisting of representative Bengal members of the Indian National Congress sitting at Sirajganj, today adopted a resolution paying homage to Gopi Nath Saha, who was hanged for murdering Mr. Ernest Day, a prominent Calcutta merchant, in January last. The speakers urged that he aimed at ridding the country of its enemies and so, while condemning his action, they admired its object. Mr. C. R. Das, one of the Nationalist leaders, voted in favor of the motion.

WILLIAM NAST ACADEMY WINS ORATORY PRIZE

(China Press Correspondence)

Kiukiang, May 31.—The Kiukiang oratorical contest staged under the auspices of the Y.W.C.T.U. was held at the William Nast College auditorium a few days ago. The purpose of the contest was to get the student body of the city thinking about the problems that confront China in overcoming opium smoking and kindred evils that afflict this land. A silver cup was offered for the winner and medals for second and third places. Admission was by ticket only as the auditorium was not large enough to accommodate the crowds that wanted to get in.

The entire contest was featured by the best of spirit on the part of all the schools concerned. All of the orators received rounds of applause from their rivals after they completed their orations.

The contest was won by William Nast Academy, represented by Loh Shao-pin, who spoke on the "Revival of Opium and China's Future." Knowles Bible Training School for women captured second place with an oration on the "Great Enemy of the Nation" by Miss Ts'eo. The Government Third Middle School took third place, Rufison High School for girls, fourth and the Government Sixth Normal School brought up the end. Judges were Dr. Chen Way-ping; Gen. Wu, Local Commissioner of Defence; Mr. Ma, Local Commissioner of Education; Miss Ts'ai, Head of Government Primary School, and Dr. Chang, of Kiukiang Hospital.

CHINESE PRESS IS RESERVED ON NEW RUSS PACT

Comment In Peking Paper Is Varied: Some Sound Warning Note

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 1.—The Chinese Press makes very little comment upon the conclusion of the negotiations between China and Russia. The Ching Pao, which is very friendly to the Russians, congratulates the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the staff of the Waichiaopu on the early and satisfactory conclusion of the negotiations with Russia, which opens a new era in diplomacy by giving an example of frank and open dealing. It expresses satisfaction at the change of mind wrought upon Mr. Karakhan, as well as with the fact that the final agreement was based largely on the preliminary agreement reached by Dr. C. T. Wang who was the pioneer in this respect.

The Chen Pao takes advantage of the opportunity to give a warning to the Chinese Government that all the great Capitalistic countries, since the establishment of the Soviet Government, have looked upon Bolshevism as a danger to mankind, and have been quick to take precautions against Bolshevik propaganda. But, owing to the fact that Soviet Russia has proved its ability to stand upon its own feet, many of these great countries have seen fit to accord recognition to Soviet Russia. In opening these relations each country has stipulated that there must be no Russian propaganda carried on within its borders. This shows that they have not ceased to dislike and to fear the Soviet system. The paper then expresses the view that, if Socialism is not in the interests of Mankind, no amount of propaganda will ever make it acceptable to the world, while, if it proves beneficial, no restrictions of propaganda will ever keep it out of the minds of men.

In attempting to draw a parallel the Chen Pao points out that since the establishment of the Republic, conditions in China have been as bad as in Russia. The Chinese militarists hold the power, and, if this goes on, the middle classes in China will soon be ruined. Thus militarism in China more than anything else is likely to turn the people to socialism. The paper hints that the Russian Legation in future may be the centre of Socialistic teachings. If the Chinese Government wishes to check Socialistic propaganda, it must take the matter in hand itself, but in any case Socialism cannot harm China.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 4.—M. Bleuler, representative of the Russo-Asiatic Bank, handed to the Waichiaopu on June 2 a formal protest on behalf of the shareholders and bondholders in the Chinese-Eastern Railway Company against the violation of their rights by the agreement between China and Soviet Russia, signed on May 31 without the knowledge of the said shareholders and bondhodders.

Copies of the protest have been given to the Peking representatives of the eight Powers who were signatory to the Washington Treaty.

Predict Recovery Of Vienna Premier

(Reuter's Service)

Vienna, June 3.—The doctors now cautiously express hopes of Dr. Seipel's recovery.

A special sitting of the National Assembly today passed a resolution of horror at the crime.
